INSANITY THE PLEA

Alienist Who Examines Prisoner Reports Traces of Mental Derangement.

TRYING TO REACH HIS MOTHER

THE GAZETTE TIMES BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, June 26, 1906.

Insanity is to be the plea of Harry Kendall Thaw for the killing of Stanford White. Thaw's friends have been quick to assert the shooting was an act of justice under "the unwritten law," and that a jury may easily be persuaded the slain man got his just deserts.

The three shots fired by Thaw on the Madison Square Garden roof on Monday night were still ringing in the ears of the hundreds of pleasure seekers who witnessed the crime when apologists for the young man pressed forward to applaud him. On every side efforts were made to besmirch the dead, to uphold the acts of a living heir to millions. Lawyers flocked forward to protect Thaw and take hurried steps to sift his recent career for conduct that could be construed as an evidence of insanity.

All of Thaw's money could not have procured for him a glass of wine today. The shots that had killed the best-known New York architect of his day had transferred Thaw's headquarters from a hotel to a prison, where he vainly asked for luxuries. He was hungry and he could get all the food he wished, but he also pleaded for champagne, but all he was permitted to buy was mineral water.

Jealousy Prompts Tragedy.

All doubt was removed during the day about the relative positions of Thaw and White at the time of the shooting. In the intense excitement many persons who were within a short distance of the table where White had been sitting realized the younger man was standing firing at him. It is evident Thaw faced his victim and held the revolver within a few inches of him.

The motive that prompted Thaw was jealousy. It is known White was acquainted with Evelyn Nesbit long before she became Mrs. Thaw, and was anxious to advance her in her professional career. Mrs. Thaw informed intimate friends from time to time that White had continued to communicate with her many times since she gave a pledge to her husband she would never voluntarily see him again. It will be this alleged persistence on White's part that will be dwelt on, when the case comes to trial, as the thing that caused Thaw's murderous frenzy.

Mrs. Thaw told her husband's lawyers today she had received many letters from Mr. White since her marriage. One of these she threw on her dressing table a few days ago, and her husband found it and became furious, vowing vengeance on the writer. She was unable to pacify him. While the finding of this letter may have been the direct cause of the tragedy, Thaw's jealousy of and hatred for White were of long standing.

White was astonished some months

EMERY GAINS BY ABSENCE OF COL. GUFFEY

Close Fight Over Democratic Nomination for Governorship.

DEWALT MEN FIRM

Lincolnites Make Vacancies on Their Ticket to Accommodate Democrats.

PLATFORM BUILDERS ARE BUSY

SPECIAL TELEGRAM FROM
WALTER J. CHRISTY, Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, PA., June 26.—The absence of Col. Guffey from Harrisburg has been hurtful to the interests of Senator Arthur G. Dewalt, the Democratic candidate for governor. There will be a contest in the convention tomorrow, and Lewis Emery, Jr., Independent Republican, will have to fight for first place.

Had Col. Guffey come to Harrisburg yesterday or today and made a stand for a straight ticket, there would be no doubt of his winning the fight. Tonight his friends say he will be here in the morning. His lieutenants have fought as best they could. They are claiming control of the convention. If the roll call tomorrow sustains their claims then Col. Guffey will have won a great victory. If the tide truly turns Emeryward, there will be announcements that the national committeeman has been unhorsed. He no doubt knows his business better than the other fellow and can best explain why he was not here today. His statement of last week that he is not a boss, but an adviser, is probably the ground for his remaining in Pittsburgh. His lieutenants would have welcomed his advice today and his presence would have undoubtedly lost Emery many votes.

Both Sides Claim Victory.

The Emeryites are claiming 218 of the 327 votes in the convention. W. J. Brennen says there will be 180 votes for a straight Democrat. This is 16 more than enough to nominate. Dewalt claims 195 votes.

State Chairman Charles P. Donnelly says that Dewalt will stand to a finish. "There will be a roll call for soldiers," is the way he puts it.

Tonight the Lincoln party state executive committee met here. Chairman Niles, Secretary Mapes and Messrs. Paul, Kline, Tilden, Garrett, Woodbury and Gable were present. They met with James Kerr, Senator Hall and B. F. Meyers, representing the Emery Democrats. It was agreed that the Lincoln party convention would be reconvened within a few days and accept the candidates of the Democrats for lieutenant governor, auditor general and secretary of internal affairs, provided the Democrats nominate Emery for governor.

Senator Gable said he held the declinations of Blankenburg, Merrick and Creasy from the Lincoln ticket. There was also an agreement that there would be a fusion in the legislature, but there was no agreement on congressional candidates.

The dealers claim there was no talk of the personnel of the ticket. Nevertheless there is a good deal of talk tonight

KNOX TO NAME NEW JUDGE FOR CIRCUIT COURT

Attorney General Moody Cables for the Senator's Recommendation.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM FROM
L. W. STRAYER, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The department of justice has called upon Senator P. C. Knox for the recommendation of a man to succeed the late Marcus W. Acheson as United States circuit judge. Attorney General Moody today sent a cablegram to the senator at Liverpool, where he is expected to land tomorrow, advising him of the death of Judge Acheson, and asking him to make a recommendation. It is supposed this course is taken at the instance of President Roosevelt and that the President will make no appointment until he hears from Senator Knox.

It was considered likely that the President would follow Mr. Knox's recommendation in this case. Mr. Knox has a high opinion of Judge James S. Young of the Allegheny county bench, and for that reason many believe Judge Young will be selected. Others are confident District Judge Joseph Buffington will be promoted to the circuit bench, a higher judicial honor with a salary of $7,500 a year, while $6,000 is paid the district judge.

Judge Buffington was today indorsed for promotion to Judge Acheson's place by almost the entire Pennsylvania delegation in the house. Representative Graham circulated a paper addressed to Senators Penrose and Knox urging them to recommend Judge Buffington for the appointment. It was signed by 25 members of the delegation, all who were in the city today. When the signatures of all have been obtained the paper will be forwarded to the senators.

MINISTER AND FIVE OTHERS ARE POISONED

First Sunday School Picnic of Wilkinsburg Church Has Disastrous Ending.

The first Sunday school picnic of the Swissvale Avenue Methodist Episcopal church of Wilkinsburg, held yesterday at Highland park, ended disastrously by the poisoning of the minister, the Rev. J. E. Morrison and five other of the merry-makers. Their illness is blamed on ptomaine in the boiled ham eaten for lunch. The other victims are:

QUINCY STALLMAN, Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg.
PAUL STALLMAN, aged nine.
MRS. S. D. WILSON, of 824 Holland avenue, Wilkinsburg.
JOHN WILSON, aged nine.
HAZEL SHAFER, aged 12, daughter of Anderson Shafer, 1239 Morrow street, Wilkinsburg.

The picnic was the first held by this congregation, whose church was only dedicated last January. Because it was the first outing, unusual preparation had been made for it. The merry crowd reached the park early in the day and after a forenoon of enjoyment, gathered around tables in the shelter house near Carnegie lake for their luncheon. The Stallman family, Mrs. Wilson and her son and little Hazel Shafer sat at the same table and all ate heartily of the boiled ham and the other things that had been prepared. Mr. Morrison was late in arriving, having been out with some of the children on the water, but after the others had finished he had his lunch, also eating heartily of the ham.

The children of the party became ill first and by 3 o'clock in the afternoon all those who had been at the Stallman table, with the exception of Mrs. Stallman and another son, Stanley, who had not partaken of the ham, became desperately sick. Sergeant P. N. Mennen and Park Officer John Ehrlin summoned Dr. John Singley, when it was found that the condition of the victims was serious and although the physician administered emetics, it was some time before the patients were considered out of danger. Mr. Morrison and Mr. Stallman seemed to be affected most. Late last night it was said all would recover.

The ham, already boiled, was secured from a Wilkinsburg butcher by Mrs. Wilson. An analysis will be made of it to determine the exact cause of the trouble.

CZAR WILL SURRENDER TO WISHES OF THE DOUMA

Demonstrations Against Bureaucracy Accomplishes Purpose—Outrages Continue.

[BY PUBLISHERS PRESS TO GAZETTE TIMES.]

ST. PETERSBURG, June 27.—At last the court officials seem to have been awakened to the significance of the recent demonstrations against the bureaucracy and it is expected that the czar today will make a practically complete surrender to the douma. This fact is said to be absolutely authentic by members of the douma, and it is asserted at present the life of the present cabinet is nearing its end.

News comes from Bessarabia that conditions are appalling. The inhabitants of the small towns and villages are attacking and wrecking the Jewish quarters. Women are being outraged before being killed and men and children are being tortured and then murdered.

Ten of the most prominent Jews in Slatiza have been torn limb from limb, while 40 others have been so terribly injured that their lives are despaired of.

MISS JESSIE WAGNER

Sensational Testimony to Show That the Defendant and Her Coachman Were on Friendly Terms. They Weep at Idea of Separation.

OPENING DAY OF GREAT LEGAL BATTLE

Four former maids in the household of Augustus Hartje, millionaire paper manufacturer, who is suing his handsome wife, Mary Scott Hartje, and is in turn being sued by her for divorce, gave sensational testimony against Mrs. Hartje yesterday. The famous divorce case, which has engaged the attention of several of the best known lawyers in Allegheny county for several months, caused crimination and recrimination on the part of the principals and led to a number of other sensational civil and criminal suits on both sides, is on trial before Judge R. S. Frazer in court of common pleas No. 2. "Tom" Madine, formerly coachman for the Hartjes, was the all-prevailing feature of the testimony. Counsels for the plaintiff declare the evidence today will be still more sensational.

Court Room Is Crowded.

Owing to the social prominence of the couple, the court room was early the rendezvous of lawyers, friends of Hartje and his wife, and the curious, who are always attracted to trials of this kind, especially where they expect to hear stories of the conduct of either party, and can watch the faces of witnesses as they tell things that were meant to be secrets, until they were brought into the case because of common gossip.

Attorneys Rodgers, Ferguson, Marron, Hartje and McCreery looked after Hartje's interests, while on the opposite side of the counsel table Attorneys Freeman, Acheson and Sterrett took care that only evidence was introduced against their client, the woman in the case. Mrs. Hartje was attended by her father, John Scott, formerly a prominent railroad man, and her mother. She bore the ordeal of listening to the stories of her household conduct during her husband's absence with composure, and only on one occasion, when her attorney, John M. Freeman, was cross-examining one of her former maids, did she show any trepidation.

During the entire day it was nothing but Mrs. Hartje and Thomas Madine. One after another of the girls told what they had seen in the Hartje house; of how Mrs. Hartje had paraded in her night-clothes before her coachman; how she had listened to his abuse, furnished him money and valuable presents, and how she even stayed with him for hours in the stable, where he made his headquarters, when Mr. Hartje, as they said, was absent, and on occasions sat with him on the kitchen table with their arms about each other.

Madine Was Uneasy.

Madine was in the court room during this recital and acted like a jumping jack. First he kept his seat, then stood up, and changed his position several times during the day, always trying to get a good look through the crowd at the witness who was telling how he acted with his mistress.

The case gives evidence of being a hard-fought one from the start, as the woman's attorneys let nothing slip by that would benefit their client, and compelled one maid to submit she took Mrs. Hartje's money, while another was practically accused of keeping company with a young man, though married. It is said there will be about 80 witnesses on both sides and that the case will occupy over a week. The Hotel Lincoln's man's name is not yet known save by the initials "H. B.," and it is unlikely that he will be introduced, as the attorneys representing Mr. Hartje believe they have ample testimony without using this name or the testimony of Negro Clifford Hooe in the case.

"We did not bring Hooe into this case publicly," said Mr. Ferguson. "Mrs. Hartje brought him in. We understand the motive and propose to show that Mr. Hartje was not the one who branded his children with such a stain. While public sentiment may be against him because this matter is misunderstood, it will all be understood before this case is ended.

Asks for Suspension of Judgment.

"All we believe we should get is a suspension of judgment until the evidence is in and then the public can condemn whom it will."

Mrs. Hartje was faultlessly attired in blue silk, and carried on a quiet conversation with her mother or father when not listening to the testimony of her former maids.

Hartje was the first witness called and gave some testimony as to his wedded life. He said he was 45 years old and married Mary Scott, on March 15, 1894. He and his wife separated 11 years later, July 24, 1905. They have two children, John S. Hartje, aged 10, and Mary Louise, aged 7. Shortly preceding their separation they had been in Europe and returned in July. Hartje told of finding his wife at home after he returned to the house that night, but his children had gone to their grandmother's, and had not been at the house since. His little boy came to see him later and then left the house. Two days after the children left, while he lay sick in bed, his wife packed up her personal belongings and left him also. Attorney Freeman said he would cross-examine Mr. Hartje later.

Mrs. Hartje Is Self-Possessed.

Mrs. Hartje was then called by Attorney Rodgers for cross-examination. While Mr. Hartje spoke under his breath and was hard to understand, Mrs. Hartje spoke out distinctly. She showed little embarrassment, save for the deadly white look about her mouth. She never once faltered or seemed to lose her nerve. Mrs. Hartje told of their European trip and said they returned earlier because Mr. Hartje was not well. She said she corresponded with friends and relatives, mostly about Mr. Hartje's health. She then identified letters written to Grandma Hartje, Richard Hartje, and two to Dr. Thorn, one from London and another from Paris. She also identified another letter written to Grandma Hartje from Atlantic City, and finally identified a letter written to "Sue," who afterward appeared as Susie Wagner, an important witness who claimed to have seen "strange doings" at the Hartje home in Mr. Hartje's absence.

When the "Sue" letter was shown her Mrs. Hartje flushed up and asked Mr. Rodgers if he wanted it explained. She looked daggers at Attorney Rodgers when he said he could read. The other letters were evidently identified by her to show her handwriting, so that this letter could not be denied, if she was disposed to do so. It shows the character and care with which the case is being fought.

Hooe's Counsel in Court.

Mr. Rodgers then handed her Exhibit 7, a shipping tag, and asked her if it was in her handwriting, which she acknowledged. During this testimony Assistant District Attorney John S. Robb, Jr., dropped into the room and took a seat at the counsel table. He will prose-

PLUCKY MOTHER SHOOTS WOULD-BE KIDNAPER

Plucky Woman Protects Her Child With Shotgun and Man Is Now in Jail.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO GAZETTE TIMES.]

EBENSBURG, PA., June 26.—While Mrs. J. C. Burkey was preparing supper in her home about a mile from Beaverdale last evening, John Pierce, an Austrian darted into the kitchen, seized Mrs. Burkey's four-months'-old baby and ran to the adjacent woods with the infant in his arms. Mrs. Burkey screamed and ran in pursuit.

Her only neighbor, several hundred yards distant, hearing the woman's screams, ran to her assistance. Together they pursued the abductor and succeeded in taking the child from him by force. Then they ran back to the Burkey house. Some time later, Mrs. Burkey, who was watching apprehensively for the man to reappear, saw him come out of the woods and proceed toward the house.

Seizing a shot gun the plucky mother went to the door and ordered him away. He paid no attention to the gun, but tried to force his way into the house. Raising the weapon Mrs. Burkey fired. The kidnaper dropped to the ground, shot through the right leg. When Mrs. Burkey's husband came home the wounded man was placed in charge of Beaverdale officers, and is now in the county jail here charged with attempted kidnaping.

The police arrested two men and started with them to the jail a half block away. A crowd quickly gathered and stones were thrown at the state police. The police being hard pressed turned and fired into the air. A bullet struck Harry R. Winkle, a 13-year-old boy, in the leg.

LONGWORTHS LEAVE GERMANY FOR LONDON

Emperor William Is Pleased Over the Opportunity of Talking to Alice.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO GAZETTE TIMES.]

KIEL, June 26.—Congressman and Mrs. Longworth left Kiel this evening, for London. They will be present at the ball to be given at the American embassy tomorrow evening and at the drawing room at Buckingham palace on Thursday. As it is Mr. and Mrs. Longworth met everyone of distinction surrounding the emperor and were several hours in his company.

They are most pleased with all the courtesies shown them and found the emperor very kind, cheerful, attentive and complimentary to America. He sent messages to President Roosevelt. Prince August, fourth son of the emperor, who was Mrs. Longworth's table companion at the dinner Sunday on the Hamburg, today, sent her his photograph with his autograph.

The emperor mentioned to members of his suite his pleasure over the opportunity he had to talk with the daughter and son-in-law of President Roosevelt and expressed the hope they would take home agreeable impressions of Germany.

About 500 persons, assembled at the railroad station to see Mr. and Mrs. Longworth off and cheered when the train departed.

ICE DEALERS REMAIN IN THE COUNTY JAIL

Attorneys Fail to Reach a Plan Which Allows Toledo Men to Escape Sentence.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO GAZETTE TIMES.]

TOLEDO, O., June 26.—The managers of the five ice companies yesterday sentenced to pay a fine of $5,000 each and to serve one year in the workhouse are still in the county jail. Commitment papers to the workhouse were not ready this morning and the attorneys of the sentenced men will hold a conference today to determine on a plan of action to escape the imprisonment sentence.

The local price of ice which was increased 75 to 100 per cent by the combine has dropped from 30 to 40 per cent.

As the five companies practically cover the city and their patrons number thousands, it is found difficult to arrange a scheme by which overcharges can be repaid as demanded by court, and thus secure a commutation of sentence. The best legal talent in the state is employed to relieve the managers from their serious predicament.

News Affects Countess of Yarmouth.

LONDON, June 26.—The countess of Yarmouth (formerly Miss Alice Thaw) was greatly affected today on learning of the tragedy in New York in which her brother, Harry K. Thaw, figured. The earl of Yarmouth when questioned on the subject said he was unable to assign any reason for the tragedy, but he had no doubt there had been serious differences between Mr. Thaw and Mr. White.

Littlefield and Powers Renominated.

THE WEATHER

"We're having shorter and more intermittent rains than Servian kings," remarked "Brudder Bill" McCrickets, leaning his umbrella against the court house railing to don his sun glasses. "Between the elements and the smoke nuisance a man has got to carry a watch these days to find out whether it is 10-cent or 5-cent fare time. A man has got about the same chance to get sunburned in Pittsburgh as he has trying to pay room rent by selling sun dials. We don't get enough smiles from Old Sol these days to raise anything but umbrellas, and when we do that most of them receive compound fractures of the ribs. It keeps a man busy hopping from open-face to winter cars, and I think the time is ripe for a congressional investigation into the weather bureau. I never was strong on over-capitalized corporations, but the weather bureau looms up as the most thoroughly watered institution we have. Besides, you can never tell just what the market is going to be. It's under a cloud all the time. I'm for turning on the light." The official forecaster in Washington predicts cloudy weather for today and showers for tomorrow, and we are informed by the local weather bureau that the maximum temperature yesterday was 78 and the minimum 65 degrees. The sun rose cloudy at 4:49 and set cloudy at 7:56 o'clock yesterday. The daily report follows:

ROBBERY AT THAW HOME IS LATEST SENSATION

Wild Story Current Last Night That Thieves Secure $60,000 Booty at Lyndhurst.

Wild rumors were afloat last night that added another sensational chapter to the list of sensations that has in the past two years piled up fast against members of the family of Mrs. William Thaw of "Lyndhurst," who is now on the ocean journeying to England to visit with her daughter, the countess of Yarmouth, and who will be met on the other side by the news that her son, Harry Kendall Thaw, is in prison in New York, charged with slaying Architect White.

The latest story is that about three weeks ago, at a time when Harry Thaw and his wife were at the Thaw home, a big robbery took place, over $60,000 worth of jewelry, principally diamonds and pearls, disappearing. This story was sent broadcast over the country last night, despite the denials of the police and of the servants left in charge of "Lyndhurst" as care-takers, that no such happening had taken place.

It was stated by the police that the only foundation for such a story was the fact that about the time of the marriage of Alice Thaw to the earl of Yarmouth a rumor became current that a robbery was being planned for the Thaw home, and that this became so persistent that it was deemed advisable to maintain a guard of special police officers and private watchmen for a time. Nothing ever came of that rumor, however.

Those who were giving currency to the story of this latest misfortune alleged to have befallen the Thaws admitted that there was no clue as to where the jewels had disappeared, or as to who had taken them. The effort seemed to be apparent to have it appear as a specially shrewd piece of work, such as might have been done by one intimately acquainted with the Thaw house and its hiding places, or by some person not in his or her right mind.

NEWS OF THE STATE AND NEIGHBORHOOD

SECRETARY TAFT TALKS TO LAWYERS

Member of President's Cabinet Addresses the Pennsylvania Bar Association.

FRAMING OF PRACTICAL LAWS

[Special Telegram to Gazette Times.]

BEDFORD, PA., June 26.—The twelfth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Bar association was held in the assembly room of the Bedford Springs hotel this afternoon.

After hearing the reports of the secretary and treasurer and the different committees the meeting adjourned until this evening, when the annual address was made by the Hon. William H. Taft, secretary of war. He said in part:

"One of the most important considerations which should address itself to the legislators in the matter of framing laws is whether the particular law is one of such a character that in the nature of things and of the people concerned it is capable of practical enforcement. The law should be a definite, concrete enunciation of rules which the most ignorant can apply to the everyday occurrences in their own lives and which an executive of average energy and courage may be expected to enforce.

"Legislators in adopting a law do not always give sufficient consideration to practical enforcement of the law. It is not the duty of the legislator to form a code and pass criminal statutes to punish those who fall short of that ideal standard. The functions of the legislators is chiefly to restrain evils arising from the interference with one man's pursuit of happiness. The theory that the state can command people to be righteous is at the bottom of much unsuccessful legislation.

"It may be asserted as a general proposition that everything which tends to delay litigation is a great advantage for the one having the longer purse. There is nothing so detrimental to the poor man as the right which if given to him must be given to the wealthiest party of carrying litigation to the higher court. The useful function of the supreme court is not to decide particular cases. Its function should be to furnish judgment in typical cases."

CHILDREN KIDNAPED; POLICE SEEKING AUNT

Prepossessing Young Woman Alleged to Have Taken Two Youngsters from a Home.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette Times.]

GREENSBURG, PA., June 26.—The Greensburg police have appealed to the authorities of the larger cities in their efforts to locate James and Gertrude Peterson, who were taken from the Children's home yesterday by their aunt, Miss Kate Peterson of Chicago. At noon she called at the home and took the children away, saying she wanted to have their photographs taken.

Late last night the matron reported to the police the children had not been returned. Greensburg and neighboring towns were scoured without result. The alleged kidnaping is the culmination of several efforts on the part of the children's mother, Mrs. Eliza Peterson of Derry, and the Chicago aunt to get possession of the children.

When the father died near Scottdale six months ago his estate was divided between the wife and the two children and the Westmoreland Savings and Trust Company was appointed guardian of the children by order of the orphans' court. It is alleged the mother and aunt think they can have the use of the money—a small-sized fortune—if they secure possession of the children. The aunt is a prepossessing young woman, 22 years old, and had been at a local hotel for a week.

POSSE USES BLACKSNAKE ON ALLEGED WIFE-BEATER

Summary Punishment Said to Have Been Dealt Out to an Ellwood Man Sunday.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette Times.]

BEAVER FALLS, PA., June 26.—Details of the summary punishment of a wife-beater in North Sewickley township last Sunday night have just reached here. William Wilds of Eastvale was driving home from the country when he heard a woman screaming. Whipping up his horse he soon overtook Jacob Remler and his wife of Ellwood. It is alleged Remler was holding his wife's head against a buggy wheel and beating her face with his fists.

Wilds, who says the woman's face was covered with blood, made Remler desist. Wilds drove hurriedly to Eastvale, where a posse was organized. Remler was overtaken and, it is alleged, dragged from his buggy. Then, it is said, he was flogged with a "blacksnake" whip until the blood ran.

When a rope was displayed Remler is alleged to have dropped to his knees and begged for his life. The wife joined in the appeal and Remler was allowed to go on his promise he would never abuse his wife again. Remler, it is said, was obliged to go to bed when he got home. It is said he threatens to bring suit against the men who formed the posse.

POSSE SEARCHES ALL DAY IN EFFORT TO FIND NEGRO

Two White Women Are Attacked While Picking Berries in a Field Near Washington.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette Times.]

WASHINGTON, PA., June 26.—A posse of 300 men and boys all day yesterday and last night searched Independence township near Avella, on the line between Washington county and West Virginia, for a negro who attacked two white women at Avella early yesterday morning.

While Mrs. S. H. Magee and Mrs. John Kanzius were picking berries yesterday morning a negro sprang at them from behind some bushes. Mrs. Magee got away from the ruffian who knocked down her companion. Mrs. Magee fled toward the Pittsburgh and Washington Coal Company's mine, screaming, while Mrs. Kanzius and the negro battled in the berry field.

Mrs. Magee's screams attracted miners, who went to the rescue. The negro fled. The miners and other residents organized a posse and started a man-hunt. The entire district was searched for nearly 20 hours, but no trace could be found. Lynching was threatened. Mrs. Kanzius is in a critical condition.

THAW IN TOMBS; GREAT LEGAL FIGHT FOR PITTSBURGHER

ago to find detectives were following him wherever he went. When he had become convinced that reports of his movements were being prepared for somebody he took steps to have some detective work done on his own account and to have his shadowers followed.

Contrasts in human life have seldom been so sharply defined as in the case of Thaw. Monday evening he sat at a table in the palatial dining room of Martin's restaurant, while at that hour tonight he was partaking of a dinner served by the caterer of the Tombs prison in cell No. 230 in murderers' row. Last night he was free to come and go as he would, tonight he is behind stone walls, barred windows and iron grated doors.

The legal fight promised as a result of the tragedy bids fair to eclipse any criminal proceedings in the history of the legal lights of the state. On one hand is the Thaw fortune, while on the other is the Empire state back of District Attorney Jerome, the sworn prosecutor. In addition it is announced tonight the millions left by White to his widow and son and those of his partners in the architectural field are to be utilized to combat any defense which may be made for the man who killed New York's most noted architect.

Expert Alienists Employed.

White's friends will leave no stone unturned in their endeavor to prove the assassination was deliberate and of such a character to show absolutely that neither insanity nor the so-called "higher law" can be invoked to clear the skirts of the husband of Evelyn Florence Nesbit Thaw. Already they have engaged expert alienists to aid the prosecution in showing Thaw was not insane.

Drs. Macdonald and Flint, the alienists, and Dr. McGuire, the Tombs physician, had a short conversation with Thaw this afternoon. Dr. McGuire was called into the case by the defense. At the close of their talk with the prisoner, Drs. MacDonald and Flint declined to make any statement. Dr. McGuire, however, said he had discovered signs of emotional insanity in Thaw and also he believed indications of incipient paresis. Dr. McGuire said he would have to make further examination.

The preliminary skirmish in the case will come Thursday when Coroner Peter Dooley will hold an inquest. The coroner will examine but four or five witnesses, and the fact White was killed by Thaw will be brought out. The jury will then return a verdict and that Thaw was responsible. The certified copy of this verdict will be taken at once to the June grand jury which will be in session and it will hold its own inquisition. It is confidently asserted by the officers for the prosecution that by Thursday night Thaw will be indicted on a charge of murder in the first degree.

So soon as the grand jury returns this indictment Thaw will be arraigned in the criminal branch of the supreme court and his attorneys will at once enter a plea of not guilty. They will then apply for the appointment of a commission to examine into and determine as to the sanity of the accused. Thaw will be represented by Delafield and Longfellow, his personal attorneys, but as they are not criminal practitioners the actual defense will be conducted by the firm of Black, Olcott & Gruber, and it is expected Former Assistant District Attorneys Rand and O'Reilly.

The active spirits in the court proceedings so far as Thaw is concerned will be Former Gov. Frank S. Black, admittedly the shrewdest lawyer in the state in criminal practice, and Mr. Rand, who, as the prosecuting official in the Nan Patterson case earned a country-wide reputation. The prosecution is to be conducted by Mr. Jerome, the district attorney of New York county in person.

One of the attorneys, who is to figure in the case, says tonight: "While it is yet too early to outline our course of future action, I want to tell you right now we will have no trouble showing that Thaw is insane. The experts who examined him today admit among themselves his condition indicate all of the symptoms of emotional insanity and incipient paresis. If this can be shown there will be no public trial. He will be sent to the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan and there he will remain until he is either cured or dies."

White's Wife Prostrated.

The funeral of Stanford White, Thaw's victim, will be held Thursday morning from St. Bartholomew's church, at Madison avenue and Forty-fourth street. The services will be simple in character as demanded by the ritual of the Protestant Episcopal church and will be conducted by Coadjutor Bishop Greer. Burial will be private in Woodlawn cemetery. Mrs. White, widow of the murdered architect, was brought to her home this afternoon, completely prostrated over the tragedy. Her two sisters, Mrs. Prescott Hall Butler and Mrs. J. Bloomfield Wetherill, a trained nurse and a physician are in constant attendance upon her.

It is extremely likely that Mrs. Thaw, the young man's mother, will know of the tragedy by this time tomorrow. She is a passenger on board the Atlantic transport liner Minneapolis, en route to London, which sailed from here last Saturday. Wireless telegraph messages have been sent to the station at Sable Island with the request that they be forwarded to any steamer that can be picked up which can get into communication with the Minneapolis. In addition the wireless operators on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which sails from Bremen tomorrow and the Majestic, which leaves Liverpool on Wednesday have been sent messages to transmit to the Minneapolis so soon as she can be picked up, giving Mrs. Thaw an inkling of the tragedy. This is done to spare the mother the sudden shock of reading on board the vessel a bulletin wireless message. Her health is not the best and friends fear if the news is not broken to her gently it may cause her collapse.

Thaw Is Arraigned.

The happenings in the case today were devoid of any sensation. In the morning Thaw was taken from the Tenderloin station to police headquarters where his photograph was taken and his Bertillon measurements recorded for the Rogue's gallery. He was then taken to Jefferson Market police court, where Magistrate Barlow remanded him to the coroner, and then to the coroner's office, from where Coroner Dooley sent him to the Tombs without bail. Through it all Thaw acted as a man dazed. He talked but little and then only to his personal friends, Burr McIntosh and his counsel, Lewis L. Delafield.

It was just 9 o'clock when Thaw was led out of the police station, handcuffed to a detective and in charge of Police Inspector Schmittberger, Capt. Hodgins and a squad of police. The trip to headquarters, to the Jefferson Market court, to the coroner's office and then to the Tombs was made in a patrol wagon, the efforts of the millionaire's friends to have a carriage used for him being sternly frowned upon by the police, who declared he would have only the same treatment accorded to all prisoners. Crowds of curiosity-seekers were present at the various points, but matters were carried along with such alacrity that but few of them even caught a glimpse of the prisoner. Photographers tried for snap shots of Thaw, but he kept his face covered with his arm most of the time.

Thaw's Wife Subpenaed.

Friends of Thaw claim the killing was due to an effort on the part of White to renew confidential relations with the Pittsburgh man's wife, but this is indignantly denied by White's family and intimates, who state his friendship for the girl was purely of a platonic character and that Thaw's so-called jealousy was without reason.

Wan and worn, her eyes red with much weeping, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, the cause of the tragedy, was closeted with her lawyers in the offices of Delafield and Longfellow, at 1 Nassau street, for hours this afternoon, and afterward went back to her apartments in the Hotel Lorraine, where she is secluded and guarded. She accepted a subpena service from the district attorney's office to appear before the grand jury Thursday. She absolutely declined to make any statement for publication.

Roused early this morning from his cell in the West Thirtieth street station house, Thaw, attired in fresh clothing brought to him by his valet, was shackled, in spite of his protestations, to a detective and taken in the patrol wagon to police headquarters. Throughout the proceedings Thaw showed little evidence of agitation, except when the detective approached him in the station house to affix the handcuffs to his wrist. Thaw was registered at the Tombs as "Harry Thaw, born in the United States, 33 years old, student."

The whereabouts of Mrs. Thaw, who disappeared from Madison Square garden in the confusion that followed the tragedy, remained a mystery until this afternoon when, accompanied by a friend, Miss May McKinsey, she arrived at the offices of Delafield & Longfellow in Wall street. Mrs. Thaw was clad in a plain brown automobile costume and appeared ill, nervous and apparently hardly strong enough to walk from the carriage to the door. At the lawyers' office Mrs. Thaw was joined by Mr. and Mrs. George Carnegie, the latter a sister of Thaw. Mrs. Thaw was not seen to leave the building and late in the afternoon it was learned she and Miss McKinsey had left the lawyers' office on the thirteenth floor, crossed the roofs of two adjacent buildings and entered a window of the City National bank building, in front of which a carriage was waiting for them. Mr. Delafield declined to make any statement on behalf of Mrs. Thaw, except to say she would not be spirited away and would respond to any summons of the authorities.

Looking Up His Record.

Assistant District Attorney Nott, who has charge of the prosecution, intimated Mrs. Thaw's presence at the inquest would not be required. It was understood this course was decided upon in view of the fact that Mrs. Thaw could stand upon her right as a wife to refuse to testify against her husband. She will, however, be required to appear before the grand jury.

The district attorney's office is busily engaged in looking up Thaw's antecedents, his mode of living, reported dissipations and indulgences with a view of analyzing their bearing upon his mental condition. On this point Mr. Nott said today: "Thaw is not insane now, nor was he insane at the time he shot White."

Asked concerning probable date of the trial, Mr. Nott said: "I know of no reason why Thaw should be treated any differently than an ordinary accused slayer. He will have to wait his turn to be tried in all probability. However, Mr. Jerome will be back in town on Monday next and will decide that."

Up to tonight the district attorney's office has received no communication from members of Mr. White's family. Mr. White's body was removed to the house this afternoon. The autopsy held today showed that three bullets had taken effect, one in the corner of the left eye, which penetrated the brain and was instantly fatal; one in the upper lip, knocking out several teeth and striking the left shoulder and lodging in the elbow.

Thaw's bearing in the Tombs was the source of much wonder to the wardens who had him in charge. While he appeared to be in a sort of daze and unable to comprehend his position, his appetite was unimpaired, for he disposed of three substantial meals during the afternoon, and having dined at 6 o'clock with every appearance of enjoyment, he remarked he expected to spend a comfortable night.

Says Thaw Is Insane.

Burr McIntosh, for many years a friend of Harry Thaw, who was with him just before the shooting, is positive Thaw was insane. He says only last Monday morning Thaw accused a person who was practically a stranger of paying attention to his wife and had threatened to kill him.

"This man," said Mr. McIntosh, "was John A. Forgotson, a well known estate operator of No. 38 East Thirty-third street who was standing in front of his place. Thaw, as Forgotson will tell you, approached him, although he knew him only slightly, and exclaimed: 'Are you still in love with my wife? If you are I'll kill you.' Mr. Forgotson was amazed and then, seeing that Thaw was distraught, replied he had not even the honor of Mrs. Thaw's acquaintance and had never seen her."

Mr. Forgotson, when seen in his office, said he would have nothing whatever to say upon the matter.

"I have," continued McIntosh, "known Thaw since boyhood and I have noticed in the last few years he has been erratic in his behavior. I have not the slightest doubt he was insane when he committed the deed. Thaw was jealous of his wife. Within the last few months he seemed to be possessed with a mania that everybody was making love to her. He even objected to any of her pictures being seen and at his request I destroyed some negatives which I had and promised him I would sell no more pictures of her."

BURGLARS LOOT ALL STORES.

Money and Merchandise Taken at Atwater Station by Well Organized Gang.

RAVENNA, O., June 26.—(Special.)—No trace has been found of the robbers who visited the town of Atwater Station, nine miles south of here, early this morning. After breaking into the postoffice and failing to get anything there the burglars looted nearly every store in the place, carrying away money and merchandise.

The robbers flagged the west bound Pennsylvania flyer enroute from Pittsburgh to Cleveland, but when the train stopped the men had climbed into rigs in waiting and started off in the direction of Randolph. The object in flagging the flyer probably was to leave the impression they had escaped on that train. A similar action occurred at Burton Friday night and it is thought an organized gang is doing the work.

COAL LANDS ARE SOLD FOR FAIR PROFITS

WASHINGTON, PA., June 26.—(Special.)—One of the most extensive coal deals ever closed in the section was put through today when Taylor, Taylor & Company of Washington disposed of 20,000 acres of land in Gallia and Lawrence counties, Ohio, and Cabell and Mason counties, Virginia, for $500,000 to eastern capitalists. The land was optioned in January at $7 to $10 an acre and held at $25 an acre in addition to the coal. The oil and gas rights are included in the deal.

NEWS OF THAW'S DEED STIRS PITTSBURGHERS

Local Relatives Hastily Leave for New York—Fears for His Mother Are Felt.

News of the killing by Harry Kendall Thaw of Stanford White, the architect, in New York, caused a deep stir among Pittsburgh's society set and among business men, for the Thaw name has been a potent one in the city's affairs. Several members of the Thaw family who were in Pittsburgh when word of the shooting was received hastily left for the east yesterday morning to lend what aid they may to their relative. Benjamin Thaw, an uncle of Harry K., was a member of the party.

It is stated that before leaving local relatives secured the aid of a well-known Pittsburgh attorney who has long been counsel for the family and also consulted with a detective. The latter, it is believed, will investigate the relations of Thaw and the man whom he killed. The effect of her son's deed on Mrs. William Thaw is the thing that is causing members of the family the greatest apprehension. Mrs. Thaw is due to arrive in Liverpool within a day or two, having sailed from New York eight days ago. Upon landing she will also learn of the death of her son-in-law, William R. Thompson, and it is feared the double blow may prove too much for her to bear.

J. Stanford White, the murdered man, was in Pittsburgh when the Carnegie Technical schools were first opened. His visit was to confer with Mr. Carnegie and the general committee for his firm, which had been invited to compete in the designs for the school buildings.

HOLMAN HOUSE SILENT.

No Reply to Rings or Raps—Stepfather of Mrs. Thaw Will Give No Information.

The home of Mrs. Charles J. Holman, mother of Mrs. Harry K. Thaw, in Berkshire street, Brookline, was besieged yesterday with reporters and others, who sought to express condolence. But the house was silent. All blinds were closely drawn, and continued ringing of the doorbell brought no response. For 15 minutes one man rang the bell, and then there was a slight, muffled sound within, a click and the bell rang no more. The wire had evidently been cut. Then rapping was resorted to, but it was all for naught. At 4 o'clock a gentleman, carrying a newspaper and a parcel, approached, and with snapping eyes asked the group what it wanted.

"May we speak with Mrs. Holman?" was asked.

"No, sir!" emphatically.

"Are you Mr. Holman?"

"I am, and there is no sense in you people occupying our porch in this manner. You cannot see Mrs. Holman, and that is all there is to it."

"Will you say anything, Mr. Holman? Is Mrs. Holman going to New York?"

"We don't know what we shall do as yet. The newspapers seem to have all the news. We cannot give you any. I say emphatically that I will tell you nothing, and there is no use in your annoying us."

CURRY COLLEGE COMES TO CLOSE OF ANOTHER YEAR

Reed and Mary Miller, and the valedictory, "The New Era," by John S. Milholland. John A. Lantz's oration, "Success in Life," was another good feature. Others participating in the program were: Helen Blumenthal, Bertha M. Engel, Irene Guthrie, Miss Marian Parke, Prof. Simeon Bissell and T. B. Marries Irish Girl on Her Arrival.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., June 26.—(Special.)—Word was received here this morning that Wilson Agnew, a wealthy resident of Patterson's Heights, a suburb of this place, had been married at New York by the Rev. J. C. Slater to Miss Lizzie J. McKeown of Ireland. Miss McKeown, who arrived in New York Saturday from Ireland, had been in this country on a visit and it was while here she first met Mr. Agnew.

Lodge Institution Date Changed.

WEST NEWTON, PA., June 26.—(Special.)—The ceremonies connected with the institution of a new Rebekah lodge at West Newton have been postponed from tomorrow till Friday, the 29th. The meetings will be held in the opera house. The inability of some of the state officers to be present is the reason for the postponement.

THAW FEARED WHITE AND HIRED DETECTIVE

Dead Architect Almost Constant Companion of Chorus Girl When Thaw Met Her.

[By Private Wire to Gazette Times.]

NEW YORK, June 26.—Harry K. Thaw feared an attack at the hands of Stanford White when first he became the constant companion of Evelyn Nesbit, and on the night she finally cast off White, it is declared, Thaw engaged the services of a private detective to be near him constantly and prevent serious harm falling upon him or Miss Nesbit through such an attack. Another mission intrusted to this detective through the association of Thaw with Miss Nesbit was he should recover from the studio of Mr. White in the tower of the Madison Square Garden, building a small statue of Miss Nesbit which decorated the mantel there, in company with similar statuets from life of other young and beautiful girls. The statue of Miss Nesbit was never recovered.

Thaw then lived in an apartment hotel near Broadway and Thirty-first street. He became acquainted with John Heitman, hotel detective, and engaged him at various times on small services. Evelyn Nesbit then lived with her mother in an apartment in the Flager in West Thirty-eighth street, near Seventh avenue.

Thaw instantly fell in love with the girl and his affection was reciprocated. Stanford White had taken an especial interest in the girl and she had sat for studies of the face and figure in his studio on many occasions. Thaw's suit made swift progress and Evelyn decided to withdraw altogether from association with Mr. White and the other artists. Thaw was to assist in this final step. He expected a revengeful attack, judging from his engaging Heitman to protect him.

GUFFEY IS STILL FOR A DEMOCRAT

Declares That as Democrats Seem to Have Agreed Upon Dewalt He Is for Him.

WANTS STRAIGHT PARTY MAN

Col. James M. Guffey left for Harrisburg last night, "standing pat." The colonel has not abated one jot from his opinion, expressed last week, that the Democrats should nominate a straight ticket at the convention in Harrisburg today, or at least should nominate a straight Democrat for governor.

"The colonel has not 'lain down,'" despite Charles A. Fagan's assertion to the contrary made in Harrisburg yesterday. He stands just where he did in the memorable statement given out last week when, while releasing his friends who are delegates to the convention from any actual or implied promise to support his contention that the Democrats should nominate a Democrat for governor, he still declared that in his opinion that was the right thing to do.

Col. Guffey was seen at his house shortly before leaving for Harrisburg. He was asked what he thought of the situation in Harrisburg and if he had altered his opinion since last week. He replied:

"There is nothing to add to the statement given out last week. I leave for Harrisburg tonight. I have no reason to change my belief that the head of the ticket should be a Democrat, and as Senator Dewalt of Lehigh seems to have been agreed upon I am for Dewalt."

Following their usual plan of arriving early at the scene of party excitement most of the Democratic politicians who still remained in Pittsburgh left for Harrisburg yesterday morning. Magistrate Kirby in particular holding his police court hearings an hour earlier that he might have ample time to catch the morning train. The unterrified making the journey were of Col. Guffey's opinion that Democrats ought to choose a Democrat to make the race for governor, and they glanced askance at the so-called independent Republicans on the train who were journeying to Harrisburg as Lincoln party men to dictate their own choice to a Democratic state convention.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY MEN MAKE BRENNEN CHAIRMAN

No Success in Getting Poll of Delegation at Caucus Which Names Committee Members.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO GAZETTE TIMES.]

HARRISBURG, PA., June 26.—In the Allegheny county caucus tonight the Guffeyites attempted to secure a poll of the delegates. This failed and the members of the delegation will vote as they please in the convention tomorrow. The Guffeyites say there will be 21 votes for Dewalt and eight for Emery. Charles A. Fagan says that at least 14 delegates will vote for Emery. The two delegates taken from Fagan in the district conventions were not given him tonight.

The caucus was presided over by W. J. Brennen and he was made chairman of the delegation. James A. Clark suggester that in order to carry out the agreement by which Fagan was to have 10 and the Guffeyites 19 delegates that there should be a poll of the delegation. Fagan said the way to settle the matter was to turn over the two substitutions owing him under the agreement. This was met by the proposition that the Guffeyites would see that he has 10 votes and if necessary two delegates would be assigned by Brennen or Clark to vote for Emery. W. E. Howley brought the discussion to an end by moving that the delegates be allowed to vote as they please tomorow. The motion prevailed.

The following committee assignments were made: Resolutions, Eugene Buckley, Forty-second district; W. J. Brennen, Forty-third district; Charles A. Fagan, Forty-fourth district; James F. Morrison, Forty-fifth district.

Organization—James McKay, Forty-second district; D. J. Boyle, Forty-third district; James A. Clark, Forty-fourth district; C. P. Mayer, Forty-fifth district.

Credentials—W. H. S. Thomson, Forty-second district; P. B. Kearns, Forty-third district; George H. Stengel, Forty-fourth district; John Murphy, Forty-fifth district.

When the Guffey Allegheny county delegates arrived this afternoon Commissioner Clark had a band and a number of boys bearing banners at the station. There was a parade to the Bolton hotel. About 30 people were in the procession. The banners told of the love of the Alleghenians for W. J. Bryan and the intense feeling for a straight Democratic candidate for governor. It was the first parade of the week and, while small, attracted a good deal of attention. This evening there was a similar demonstration on the part of the straight Democrats of Philadelphia.

Alumni Day at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., June 26.—This was Alumni day at Yale. Hundreds of old graduates came from every quarter of the country to listen to the annual report of President Arthur T. Hadley, who said the financial condition of Yale was much better now than in past years. The alumni meeting was presided over by J. Benjamin Dimmick, '81, of Scranton, Pa. Justice David J. Brewer, '56, was one of the speakers.

Hetzel Family Holds Reunion.

The second annual reunion of the Hetzel family was held yesterday at the chapel in Riverview park. About 75 members of the family from Pittsburgh were present, and Mrs. Frank Wellman of Springfield, Ill., was a guest from a distance. Mrs. Charles Seifel of Locust street, Allegheny, is president of the association.

EMERY GAINS BY ABSENCE OF GUFFEY

about the likelihood of nominating Jerry S. Black, Democrat, of York, for lieutenant governor; W. T. Creasy, Democrat, of Columbia, for auditor general, and E. A. Coray, Independent Republican, of Luzerne, for secretary of internal affairs.

This Leaves Out Castle.

This leaves Homer L. Castle of Pittsburgh out of consideration. State Treasurer Berry is the only person talking of Castle. The Emeryites are not inclined to deal with the Prohibitionists, as the water party appears to have scratched Emery. The Prohibition and Democratic executive committees will meet tomorrow morning.

The above program has to do entirely with the Emery wing of the Democracy. The Guffeyites have had no conferences with the Lincolnites. Should Dewalt win the gubernatorial nomination he will be on a ticket consisting entirely of Democrats. The balance of the candidates will not be figured on until Dewalt secures first place.

W. J. Brennen issued this statement tonight: "After a close canvass of the delegates who have arrived in Harrisburg it shows that a large majority of the convention is in favor of the nomination of a Democrat and that at the convention tomorrow there will be at least 150 votes cast to nominate a Democrat for governor to represent the Democratic party of Pennsylvania. Democrats have been aroused over the proposition that Republicans shall be allowed to divide the Democrats in a Democratic state convention over the office of governor and defeat a Democrat by a Republican. The convention is overwhelmingly for a fusion ticket, but not a fusion ticket without a Democrat for governor."

Strong on Street Placards.

Judge Gordon, James Kerr and Senator Hall, who are in charge of the Emery campaign, simply say they have the votes, but decline to make any statement. They brought in a good many Emery boomers today and their headquarters have been crowded. This is also true of the Dewalt headquarters. Both sides were strong on street placards today. One of the latest read: "For governor, Lewis Emery, Jr., Republican." This came from the other side and helped to inflame the straight Democrats.

There was no fight over the selection of a temporary chairman. The position goes to M. J. Ryan of Philadelphia, an organization man. Peter J. Hughes tried to launch a boom for governor for Maj. Joseph Veale of Philadelphia. The scheme has not worked. Chairman Donnelly says Veale will not be supported by the Philadelphians. They will vote for Dewalt, but will not caucus until morning.

Two platforms are being built tonight. W. J. Brennen is erecting one while Judge Gordon is working on the other. Brennen will have a strong Bryan plank, while Gordon will treat the Nebraskan mildly. Effort is being made to reach an agreement on the platform. Hall, Kerr and Meyrs conferred with Donnelly and Brennen. The Guffeyites want a direct indorsement of Bryan. Meyers is hopeful that a plank charging the President with stealing Bryan's thunder can be substituted. The Emeryites do not want to go before the people on a Bryan platform.

Guffey Cannot Be Unhorsed.

Discussing the reported purpose of the Kerr-Gordon-Wanamaker interests to seize control of the Democratic organization in Pennsylvania in the event of Emery's nomination by tomorrow's convention, W. J. Brennen, regarded here as spokesman for Col. Guffey, said:

"The Democratic voters of Pennsylvania will have something to say about the leadership. Under the uniform primary election law, which will go into effect before the next delegate election shall be held, the Democrats will have an opportunity to express their preferences as to party leadership directly at the polls. The delegates to the next Democratis convention will elect Col. Guffey's successor as Democratic national committeeman. These national delegates will be chosen, as candidates for congress are nominated, by the votes of the Democrats in their respective congressional districts. Under the provisions of the new primary election law, Democrats only will have an opportunity of voting for these delegates.

"There will be no fusionists, no bolting Republicans, no Lincolnites not any independents or voters of any character whose actions are influenced by insurgent or independent Republican newspapers to interfere with the naming of staunch Democrats for national delegates. Col. Guffey is stronger than he ever was with the rank and file of Democratic voters of Pennsylvania. They know what he has done for the Democratic party, they know of his unselfish interest in the welfare of the Democratic organization and they know how he has subordinated his personal views regarding the action to be taken at tomorrow's convention in order that every Democrat shall have an opportunity to vote his sentiments regarding the complexion of the ticket to be nominated.

"Col. Guffey will succeed himself as the member of the Democratic national committee if he so desires. Of that there can be no doubt."

BITTERNESS AT STATE COMMITTEE MEETING

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO GAZETTE TIMES.]

HARRISBURG, PA., June 26.—Much bitterness disclosing a deepseated factional feeling was displayed at the meeting of the Democratic state committee this afternoon. It was in a discussion over the adoption of a report from the executive committee regarding changes in the rules to have them conform with the new election law.

Insinuations were made reflecting upon the party loyalty of Philadelphia and Allegheny county leaders and these were indignantly resented. A rule was submitted for representation in state conventions based upon the average vote for Democratic state candidates at the last preceding election, instead of upon the Democratic vote polled at the preceding presidential election. D. G. Magee of Lancaster offered an amendment providing for basis of representation upon the presidential vote. He said:

"The full strength of the Democratic party might not be represented this year if Emery is placed upon the ticket, while I believe every Democrat in the state would vote for Bryan in case the two happened to be on the ticket at the same time."

When the argument was made that the adoption of this amendment would put the representation in the next state convention upon the Democratic vote cast for Parker for president, F. M. Gallagher of Lycoming, remarked: "If the Democrats cannot step up and vote for their presidential electors, they have no right to be called Democrats. If there are any traitors in the Democratic party, men who did hot support Parker, it is well that we should know it and they should be pointed out as traitors to the party."

E. L. Humes of Crawford said Philadelphia and Allegheny poll a big vote in presidential years but in state and local elections their vote falls off. He said the purpose of this amendment was to increase the representation of Philadelphia and Allegheny.

"If it is carried," said he, "you will find Philadelphia and Allegheny controlling the conventions. The amendment is against the county delegates."

Chairman Donnelly interrupted the speaker by declaring that he favored the recommendation of the executive committee which places the basis of representation on the vote cast each year. William J. Brennen of Allegheny, with a show of feeling, declared that Mr. Humes' reflections were unfounded.

"This is not the time to call men traitors," said he. "We have seen Crawford sold out time and time again and the remarks of the gentleman from that county comes with poor grace."

Humes is an Emery supporter and Brennen is for a Democrat for governor.

"My skin is not so thin," interjected Chairman Donnelly, "as that of the gentleman from Pittsburgh. For a man who has been shot so often I am pretty solid."

Mr. Humes made a motion that the amendment to the rule be laid upon the table and this was carried by a vote of 25 to 26, after which H. O. Haag of Schuylkill moved that the rule recommended by the executive committee be adopted and this was carried by a unanimous vote.

The rules were then ordered to be reported to the state convention for ratification. They will go into effect after the November election. B. F. Meyers of Harrisburg was elected treasurer of the state committee in compliance with the provisions of the "corrupt practices act."

MRS. C. KRAMER

THE RIGHT MEDICINE FOR PELVIC TROUBLES FOUND IN PE-RU-NA.

MRS. CAROLINE KRAMER, Fort Collins, Col., writes:

"The majority of women who are suffering from disordered periods and other pelvic troubles, have such strong faith in doctors that they allow them to experiment on them for kidney, liver or stomach troubles until they become completely discouraged and their money is gone.

"This was my unfortunate experience for nearly two years when my attention was called to Peruna.

"I hardly dared believe that at last I had found the right medicine, but as I kept on using it and was finally cured, I could only thank God and take courage.

"I have had most satisfying results from the use of your medicine and have advised dozens of women who were suffering with woman's ills to use Peruna and let the doctors alone.

"Those who followed my advice are better today and many are fully restored to health."

Mrs. Wilda Mooers, R. F. D., No. 1, Lents, Ore., writes:

"For the past four years I was a wretched woman, suffering with severe backaches and other pains, leaving me so weak and weary that it was only with difficulty that I was able to attend to my household duties.

"I used different remedies, but found no relief until I had tried Peruna.

"Within two weeks there was a change for the better and in less than three months I was a well and happy woman. "All the praise is due to Peruna."

Opportunity Knocking at the Door of Bachelor and Benedict.

For the Generous Underprice of $16.50 We're Selling Men's $25.00 Suits.

Eight dollars and a half saved on a suit of clothes! Eight dollars and half saved on a suit of clothes that is up to the moment in style! We're not dyed-in-the-wool believers in the proverb that opportunity knocks only once at your door, but we do say that men are not likely to have such another opportunity this Summer to buy Summer Suits for such a price.

The material is what is known as a fancy mixture, that is, a pretty combination of very neat patterns of different colors: some of them well pronounced, others again scarcely discernible from plain cloths. All pure wool. All three-piece suits. Light weight Summer textures. Full range of sizes.

Boys' $1, $1.25, $1.50 Wash Suits, 85c.

Russian Wash Suits, cut Cossack style. Sizes for 2½ to 7 years. Materials are chambray in pink and blue stripes, and striped galatea.

Shall we go into a long explanation as to how we can sell these suits for 85c? We don't think mothers would enjoy it or care for it. All they care to know is that the suits are sound, and that they couldn't be bought wholesale for the price we're going to charge, retail, tomorrow.

Summer Hosiery for Women and Children.

We've been told there is no variety in hosiery in the city like ours. Sometimes this may be said in a spirit of flattery, but in the main we believe it to be true. At any rate it is quite true that no importations come through the Pittsburgh Custom House such as we bring over.

We have pursued the policy, for many years, of going to Europe for the major portion of our hosiery collection, and by doing so it naturally comes that our Stocking Division at all times undersells the Pittsburg market, while at all times it is in advance with best assortments. Just now we have much pride in as complete variety of Summer Hosiery as it is possible to gather together.

Uncle Sam's Handsome Flag.

One week from today the American Republic celebrates its independence. As a rule this consists of much noise and a great display of stars and stripes. Old Glory is far and away the handsomest flag among nations, and it is the one flag in the world of nations that commands a wholesome respect wherever it is to be found. For this one reason every loyal American should fling to the breeze on the Fourth of July morning a United States Flag.

We're ready to supply flags of any size from the monster flag of U. S. wool bunting to the neat but small mounted silk flag. Prices the lowest.

Sec. 3. The cost, damages and expense of the same to be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited, in accordance with the provisions of the acts of assembly of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

Sec. 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

The Thaw Tragedy.

"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap," is the one lesson of the Thaw tragedy. White and Thaw had sown the wind and they have reaped the whirlwind. This is not merely the rule of Holy Writ, but it is an irrevocable law of nature from which there is no escape by either man or woman. White, shot down like a dog, and Harry Thaw, held for his murder, point to the same moral and are startling illustrations of a truth that is as old as human experience and unflinching in its application. The whole incident is somber and forbidding, without a mitigating circumstance to brighten the picture or stimulate sympathy for the principals, be they living or dead.

The most deplorable phase of the occurrence is the taint it puts upon innocent relatives of Thaw and White. The trail of scandal and of blood leads to the doors of a dozen or more honored and respected families, whose members and their friends are thus plunged into the most painful and humiliating form of distress for a crime in which they had no responsibility growing out of moral lapses and degrading indulgences which they had not countenanced. Whether they be of Pittsburgh or of New York these families are entitled to the profound sympathy of the community, and about them should be thrown the mantle of gentle considerateness which is their just due. Not even time can now remove the bar sinister, but their friends and neighbors have it within their power to greatly comfort them in a thousand unobtrusive ways.

As for White, the man of 53 and of grown family, if it be true, as Thaw alleges, that he not only made conquest, but boasted of it and flaunted it since the marriage of Thaw, there will be precious little regret. He has paid the wages of sin. It does not follow, however, that Thaw was justified in slaying him. That was simply making a bad matter infinitely worse.

The chief interest in Henry Kendall Thaw will now be as to his legal responsibility. His career has not been admirable. He is a pervert. Judged only by what has been printed of him since he reached man's estate—and disregarding the more disgusting things that cannot be detailed in a newspaper and never will be—he has been a disgrace to the name he bears and to the mother and brothers who have sought by every conceivable means to lead him into safer paths and saner conduct. But the way of the transgressor is hard, and the law was made for Thaw as well as for the child of the slums, and the law will simply ask: "Did he have a moral conception of what it means to kill a fellow man?" It is the supremacy of the law that is to be vindicated, not young Thaw. The questions will not therefore be, Has he been insane, or irresponsible, for years past? Is he a pervert merely in the sense that his morals have been perverted and his conduct frequently has been scandalous? It will scarcely be contended that during all these years his mind was in such condition that he did not realize the legal responsibility for murder. Consequently the case narrows itself down to his condition the night of the tragedy, or to a period of a few hours or days preceding the actual slaying. On the one hand is an asylum for the criminal insane and on the other hand the electric chair. It will not even be left to him to choose. It is for the law to decide.

A Humiliating Confession.

The state of mind of the Democratic convention which meets at Harrisburg today to nominate a state ticket is a chaotic one. This is not remarkable inasmuch as the condition of the minority party since 1896, when it fell apart on the Bryan issue, has been constantly chaotic. Its views have been uncertain, its policy has been ill-defined and its lack of confidence in itself has become steadily more and more accentuated. Being in this condition, the party offers an apparently easy prey to marauders; and hence, within the last few weeks the astonishing spectacle has been presented of Prohibitionists, Lincolnites and Wanamakerites volunteering to take over and convert to their own use this once substantial and self-respecting political organization. More astonishing still, an element has been found in the Democratic organization to meet the outsiders half way and to entertain proposals for throwing the Democratic vote to the support of a ticket made up wholly of Wanamaker Republicans except in the case of one minor office the nomination to which, with benign condescension, is offered to the Democratic floor leader in the state legislature. In a word, the Democracy is invited to immolate itself for the sole purpose of placing a minority Republican faction in control of the state government.

This is the pivotal proposition at today's convention. It splits the Democracy into two factions, one shamefacedly pleading for the preservation of the party's identity and autonomy; the other working under schismatic Republican leadership for a schismatic Republican ticket and justifying its course by the claim that the extinction of the Democracy means reform. And perhaps it does. Perhaps the finishing touch that needs to be put to the work of reform conducted by Republican hands under the direction of our present Republican governor is the elimination of the Democratic party for keeps. This is good reasoning from a Republican point of view. But oh, what a confession for any considerable Democratic element to make!

The people of San Francisco, with July 5 so far away, are beginning to realize what a dreadful thing is thirst.

Diversion of Revenues.

Officials of the 67 counties of Pennsylvania and all public-spirited citizens who are familiar with administration of county affairs should be especially attracted to this plank in the platform of the Republican party:

We believe that, owing to the splendid system of taxation of corporations now in vogue in this state and the faithful collection of the taxes due from corporations and other sources by the present Republican auditor general, William P. Snyder, assisted by our able and efficient attorney general, Hampton L. Carson, the time is now come when the laws regulating the collection of personal property tax and license fees should be so amended that a larger proportion if not all of these moneys shall be entirely diverted from the state treasury for the benefit of the counties in which the same shall have been collected.

Personal property tax is a direct levy upon individuals and license fees come directly from business men. The tax is levied partly for revenue purposes and partly to assure the placing of a share of the cost of government upon such persons as have their possessions in the shape of personal property instead of real estate. License fees are of various forms, their purpose being to provide methods of regulating the several branches of business, to fix responsibility for the proper conduct of this business and to furnish funds necessary for the protection of persons so engaged as well as to maintain the government. As pointed out in the platform, however, thanks to our system of taxing corporations and to the zeal with which state officials have been collecting revenues due from this and other sources, the condition of the finances of Pennsylvania is so prosperous that it is clear that the state is in shape to extend assistance to counties in maintaining their administration and improving their property and highways. For years it has been the policy to divert certain portions of purely state revenues to county uses, as is done in districts for the public schools, and the Republican party now pledges itself to an extension of this policy to the fullest limit consistent with prudence. The suggestion is even made that it may be feasible to return all personal property tax and license fees to the counties, and doubtless ultimately this will be done.

In this connection the uninformed may contend for reduction or abolition of these forms of revenue, but this would not be practicable nor just. If personal property tax were abolished many rich men, whose investments are represented almost entirely by bonds and mortgages or money at interest, would escape all participation in government maintenance, and this would result in discontent and possible disaster. As for license fees, they are recognized as a regulative necessity and as a rule they are so graded that they do not constitute a burden. It would be clearly impracticable to do away with them, and there is no demand for their reduction. Evidently, then, it is wise to put them to the best purpose possible, which is to apply them to local uses, thus permitting relief in other forms of taxation.

President Roosevelt has not found it necessary to tell what he thinks of Senator Bailey.

Stingy Mr. Rockefeller.

It is but a few weeks since we were compelled to comment upon the crushing blow dealt the nation's manufacturers of hair restorers by Mr. Rockefeller's policy in obstinately clinging to his wig, thereby encouraging other victims of baldness to do likewise and spoiling the sale of the deserving and standard remedies. But Mr. Rockefeller's censurable conduct does not stop here. It was hoped by his friends that an ocean voyage would have a gently reforming influence; that amid new surroundings he would become a new man and discard those reprehensible traits which have lately evoked so much unpleasant criticism. It is evident from the cable news that the beneficent influences so fondly anticipated have not yet begun to work. Mr. Hyde still rules and Dr. Jekyll is in the background. According to a correspondent, the richest man in the world attended a competition of archery at Compiegne. While watching the sport he was approached by a respectable looking man "of medium height, with red hair and a smooth face," who requested the sum of 48,000 francs. When asked why he named this particular sum, the man replied in a most straightforward manner, without the slightest attempt at evasion or concealment: "Because it is that much I need." It was a simple, manly request, presented in the most polite manner possible. But was it granted?" Did Mr. Rockefeller take advantage of this opportunity to accommodate a fellow-being in need? According to all accounts, he did not. He refused with emphasis. The disappointed stranger bowed courteously and retired.

It is unnecessary to remind Mr. Rockefeller that he cannot take his riches with him when he retires from terrestrial scenes. The college presidents and others will do that. But it does seem as if our most famous plutocrat were making little effort to dodge the accusation of being a "tight wad" and that he has no morbid fear of dying a rich man. It is evident that courteous strangers who confer with him regarding pecuniary assistance are only wasting their time.

Still the Best Guide.

Out of travail and distress there sometimes comes good. The publication of evils, public and private, national and local, may bring a pause in some life given to waywardness, though not wholly lost in self-respect. Painful as the recital of human transgressions is some new sign may be put out that will prove a lamp to the feet first treading the thorny path, leading them into the pleasanter walks of life.

Sermon after sermon may be preached, precept after precept cited, but it is the tragic example that strikes home with greatest force and starts introspection which often paves the rugged highway to redemption. Pitiful human disasters have wrenched loving hearts since the world began. Samson had his Delilah as well as Antony his Cleopatra, but the old lesson, ever new, teaches that out of evil good may come, and that in the most corrupt Nazareth beauty of life and soul often emerges.

How peaceful and calm is the fireside void of offense, the humble home where contentment dwells, where, lodged "Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife" the sane wishes of the household never stray beyond the simple blessings vouchsafed them. So when we look upon tragedies that fret and pain the innocent we can turn to the thousands—yes millions—of happy hearts not in Pharasaical rejoicing, but in exemplification of the old truths so eloquently expounded in the Sermon on the Mount. The Ten Commandments still stand as a guide to the best happiness on this earth and the promotion of the largest satisfaction to be had in the short span of existence allotted to all the peoples of the world.

The librarian of a Carnegie institution out west, who proposes to change the spelling of all the books in his charge to conform to his benefactor's recommendations, would better wait a while. He might have to change them all back again.

Strangers who make the acquaintance of Mr. Rockefeller abroad find that he does not make loans with facility. He has to think of those tips to steamer servants on the voyage home.

The fact seems to have been established that smooth-faced, red-haired men who ask Mr. Rockefeller for 48,000 francs will not get it.

The physicians of Buffalo have declared for a safe and sane Fourth. Here is a fine example of unselfishness.

The Chicago discovery that it is possible to get married on $10 a week should have been made earlier in June.

It is difficult to convince the small boy, with his eye on the Fourth, that the days are getting shorter.

These are great days for the professional cynics.

Canned tomatoes, it appears, may be just as dangerous as canned meat.

Pastor Wagner's book on the "Simple Life" is due for another boom.

Amid the excitement the Chicago packers are enjoying grateful oblivion.

THE PROBLEM OF ANARCHY.

That is a disturbing exhibition of anarchy which Broughton Brandenburg, long a student of immigration and various sociological and economical questions, gives us in Collier's. He hurls a bolt right at the outset by saying that it was not in the centers of old-world oppression, but in these free United States that the deed of Manuel Morales, the Spanish dynamiter, was most loudly applauded. There have been held scores of open meetings, disregarded by the press, and even unknown perhaps to the public, in which the act of "martyrdom" has been lauded by hundreds of unbridled orators.

And then Mr. Brandenburg proceeds to present a summary of anarchy, its theories, disciples and propagandists, which must cause the friend of government, justice and order to shudder. He shows that we are importing annually by the thousands men of small, warped or embittered intelligence who are saturated with the pernicious doctrines of anarchy.

"Given a man who has been oppressed abroad until he is in a chronic attitude of revolt," writes Mr. Brandenburg, "then put the accepted ideal that he and his fellows have been robbed of the property they produced by the capitalist system of production, and he is inclined to take by violence what he has been taught is his own. Any railroad president or head of any big plant who is planning to import wage-laborers from Europe's centers of oppression this season, as many will do, should stop and consider long and well. For the sake of profit he is surrounding his property with men who on occasion will become wolves of violence and take his property or his life away from him. The leaders of the packs are here in preponderating numbers, fugitives from foreign prisons, espionage, and oppression; sheltered by our free institutions, yet eager to give tongue."

As to the doctrines and their relations to the race, Mr. Brandenburg has this to say:

"The whole proposition resolves itself into a question of the effect of a radical revolutionary doctrine on a given set of individuals, who in turn are able to incite to dangerous acts masses of people who are not mentally capable of comprehending involved doctrines. The principles of anarchy appealed to Tolstoy as beautiful ideals, to Tucker of Boston as an exercising ground for his superabundant mental energy; to Capt. Michael J. Schaack as a hydra-headed monster; to Czolgosz as a pedestal on which to strike a dramatic attitude; to Lingg as the moral excuse for wholesale slaughtering by dynamite; to John Most as a theme for fiery polemic; to Bismarck as a rose-ate ideal as chimerical as the millennium, and withal fallacious as being a form for human society that did not take into consideration the competitive characteristics of human nature. To millions they are nebulous permissions to take what they have been taught is theirs, though in the possession of others, and if necessary or convenient to kill the possessors if they protest."

There are about 27,000 anarchists in the United States, and there is an increase of about 3,000 or 4,000 a year by immigration. Anarchy, more the pity, is flourishing here, but it is encountering two great difficulties in effecting a solidarity within itself, says the Louisville Courier Journal. All large meetings of anarchists have speeches in several languages, which is highly indicative of the foreign nature of the doctrines and their exponents. Thus diverse races and tongues within the same community are the greater difficulty. The lesser is the prosperous condition of the workingmen in America. The coming of dark days will give the propagandists a better hold.

Here is, indeed, a grave problem. It is one for which no solution has been found. Vigorous repression by law increases rather than discourages the forces of anarchy. The assassins who were executed in Chicago as a result of the Haymarket riots are now glorified as heroes of the faith. Czolgosz, Brescia and Morales are arising over the horizon as canonized martyrs. The more you crush such people with law the more rabid they grow in their hatred of law, the utter annihilation of which is the ultimate ideal of their cult. Mr. Brandenburg himself admits that the situation is too much for him. He cannot offer a solution. The forces of anarchy are too insidious to be coped with by ordinary means.

It would seem, since anarchy is of so foreign a complexion, that the place to begin the work of stamping out anarchy is at the immigration offices, and this does not promise complete success. Vigilance may reduce the possible number of anarchistic immigrants, however. Liberal treatment of workingmen by the employing classes, which will make them so contented as to render them impervious to the howling of the agitators, ought also to help "down" the insanity. Here is food for thought upon the part of patriots, whether in or out of office.

OUT THE PIKE.

Yesterday at the B. M. camp in North Strabane township a party of Canonsburgers made a capture of five coons. The party was headed by Ezra Henderson, who was assisted by F. A. Miller, Steve Williams and Frank Frayer. If all accounts are true, coons and groundhogs are as plentiful in that neighborhood as dogs are in Canonsburg.—Canonsburg Notes.

Section gang No. 16, Harry Hayman, foreman, killed a rattlesnake two feet four and one-half inches long near McSpadden station last Saturday. His snakeship appeared while the trackmen were partaking of their noon repast. As soon as his presence became known a pitched encounter ensued and the rattler was only dispatched after several broadsides of ballast had been delivered by the gang with Foreman Hayman and Mr. Daniel Snyder on the firing line. Trackman John Cnopsnyder detached seven fine specimens of the reptile's rattles.—Rockwood Leader.

Richard Higgins, a young man who is well known around town, is in the Bradford lockup awaiting a hearing on the charge of catching trout under the size allowed by law. Fish Warden Conklin arrested Higgins on West branch, where Higgins was fishing. When the fish were counted it was found that he had in his possession 54 under-sized fish. The law says that a fine of $10 must be imposed for every fish. The law also states that only 50 fish may be legally caught by one person in a day, with a fine of $25 for each fish over the stipulated number. If this is the case it will cost Higgins $640 to secure his freedom, as the alderman hearing the case has no discretion but to impose the fine.—Bradford Record.

When John C. Gnagy of Somerset township, one of the carriers employed on the rural free delivery routes out of Somerset, drove into town Friday afternoon he had two large blacksnakes trailing from the rear of his vehicle. Naturally this unusual appendage to Uncle Sam's mail wagon attracted a curious public, but, like all men with snake stories, Mr. Gnagy had a satisfactory explanation to make. The route over which Mr. Gnagy makes week-day trips passes through Lincoln township and touches the base of the mountain where, he says, snakes and especially those of the black variety are plentiful. Two weeks ago he killed one over five feet long that was crossing his path. The snakes displayed Friday were four feet and six feet in length, and were killed by Harry Trimpey near the Arisman sawmill situated on the North Fork road run in Lincoln township. Belts will be made from the skins.—Somerset Standard.

Wealth By Special Privileges.

Chicago News.

There are many men who have acquired riches honestly and is is but fair that all should have opportunities to do so. That wealth in itself is now regarded with so much suspicion and even hatred indicates an unwholesome frame of mind, and for the conditions that produce it the people themselves are to a certain extent to blame. The millionaire who has acquired his wealth honestly and by his own efforts is no enemy of the public welfare. Quite the contrary. It is the millionaire who has gained his fortune through the enjoyment of special privileges in the form of illegitimate favors whose influence is to be feared. Let the people insist that special privileges be wiped out, that all business be conducted in a lawful manner, and that equal opportunities be provided for all. In conditions where every man must work his way forward openly and by fair means there would be no occasion for the prejudice which now bulks all wealth together as evil.

Mr. Roosevelt's Popularity Abroad.

London Spectator.

At this moment President Roosevelt is what he has been for many years—one of the most popular figures in the English-speaking world. To our people he stands for whatever is honorable, high-minded, courageous, wholesome and sincere in the conduct of public affairs, and we do not hesitate to say that if he were to visit England he would have a reception which would rival that given to Garibaldi at the height of his popularity and that it would be a reception in which every class in the community would join with equal pleasure.

Not Intended to Soothe.

Minneapolis Journal.

The joint resolution of the senate, expressing the horror of the people of this country at the Jewish massacres in Russia, may offend the Russian government. It is to be hoped that it will; that is not far from what was intended. If the Russian government gets mad about it the result may be measures to prevent a recurrence of the outrages.

THE PATRIOT.

This is my country's natal morn, my heart with rapture thrills—
I've bought a gun for little John, the kind that sometimes kills,
And Susie has a pistol, too—she'll burn herself
I fear,
But what's the difference if she does? It's only once a year.
That I in patriotism lack it never shall be said—
The baby has some crackers now, that might blow off his head.
They're somewhat dangerous, for they're filled with dynamite, I hear;
But shoot them off, my darling child, 'tis only once a year.
I've heard that rockets have been known to put out children's eyes—
Of course in every childish sport some danger lurking lies.
We'll have to take our chance of that, they mustn't stand too near,
For we must celebrate the Fourth, 'tis only
once a year.
So though the baby's blown to bits, and
Johnny's lost his sight,
Though Susie's hair is all burnt off by time that it is night,
I'll sing, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," in accents loud and clear,
For I have kept the glorious Fourth, which comes but once a year.

—Elsie Duncan Yale in July Lippincott's.

QUIET OBSERVER

By ERASMUS WILSON.

"O for something to beat the bugs," sighs the Bostonian.

And you would sigh with him were you to see how the gypsy and buffalo moths are destroying the fine elms in the commons and parks and the wild tree growths in the beautiful fells.

There are hundreds of men at work daily in the effort to beat these bugs, but at present are just about holding their level.

When you understand that there are over 7,000 acres of parks and wildwood lands included in the metropolitan system you can form some idea, possibly, of the extent of the field in which these busy and most destructive moths are operating.

\+ \+ \+

The story of these moths is interesting, and should serve as a warning to park commissioners everywhere.

In 1868 one of Louis Agazis' assistants, who had been studying silk-producing moths, thought it possible, by crossing gypsy and brown-tailed moths, to produce a better grade of silk worms.

He imported a few gypsy moths, which he placed in a tree in Malden, a suburb of Boston, along with some brown tails, or buffalo moths, retaining them by inclosing the tree in netting.

His scheme did not work, and he forgot about the moths, so they flew away when the wind and storm had destroyed the netting. Thus was the great pest introduced in the Boston woodlands.

\+ \+ \+

Up to 1900 the commonwealth of Massachusetts had expended over a million and a half dollars in fruitless efforts to get rid of these destructive little pests, and it is safe to say double that amount has been expended since.

Last year Gen. Lawrance expended over $10,000 on a few hundred acres adjoining Middlesex fells.

Large forces are constantly at work in the commons, the city gardens and Mt. Auburn cemetery. In these the pests are kept well under control, but the prospect of annihilating them is by no means flattering.

The rough outside bark has been scraped off of every tree and bush for the space of a foot or more a few feet from the ground, and the scraped surface daubed with a sticky grease called tanglefoot to catch the gypsy moth, which travels on the ground from tree to tree when the distance is too great to swing by its web.

Just above the tanglefoot belt a strip of coarse hemp cloth is wound and tied fast. This forms an attractive nesting place for those that escape the tanglefoot. During the winter these nests are burned.

The gypsy moth, or caterpillar, is of a green color, hairy and about an inch and a half long, but it is so voracious that it will eat many times its weight of foliage every day.

So thoroughly does it skeletonize the leaves that they look like coarse webs sticking to the twigs and limbs. A tree that has been done up by them soon begins to die, or to burn up in the hot sun.

This moth lays its eggs, about 250, under the edge of the rough bark. To destroy these the caretakers scrape off this bark with wire brushes, after which the surface is sprayed with a creosote mixture.

The brown-tailed moth, or caterpillar, is not quite as long as the gypsy, rather flat, thickly covered with brown hair, with several long filaments of a darker brown, forming a tail that streams out as it swings on its stout thread.

A peculiarity of the hairs on this worm is that when they touch the flesh they cause a stinging sensation like a nettle, or rather resembling the burning caused by rubbing cousage on the skin. It also has some of the peculiar property of cantharides, or Spanish fly, causing a blister, or series of blebs to arise.

If rubbed in, as when brushing one off the bare skin, or crushing it, as you are apt to do, a sore not unlike a carbuncle in appearance follows and may last for a week or more.

A few weeks ago, during the temporary absence of the caretakers from Brookline, one of the near suburbs of Boston, the "brownies" got so bad that they were swinging from every limb, and their poison hairs flying everywhere, so that any one going on the street was certain to get a dose.

Hundreds of school children were poisoned, and for a time it looked as though the schools would have to close. Hospitals were filled, and every doctor had his hands full. No fatalities have yet occurred that can be traced directly to this cause.

It only took the bug hunters a few days to clear the atmosphere with their motor sprays, and now all is well down Brookline way.

Visitors in the parks and on the many miles of delightful driveways in the woodlands are in no great danger, as these are kept quite clear by the large force of men constantly employed.

\+ \+ \+

The national department of agriculture is now making a careful and thorough search in foreign lands for the natural enemy of these moths, for without it there is not much hope of exterminating the pest.

This enemy, when found, may also prove to be such a pest that it will be necessary to hunt up its natural enemy.

So far neither of these moths, or caterpillars, has gotten outside of the Boston district. In Salem, Concord, Lexington and neighboring places the authorities are on the lookout for them, and are prepared to nip their invasion in the bud.

It will be well for good people everywhere to keep an eye out for these pests, and to destroy them one by one, for if they get a start they will prove more formidable than an army with banners.

\+ \+ \+

About the meanest man there is may be found in jail in Providence, R. I. He took a number of samples of brown-tail nests, with some gypsy eggs, and planted them in the big elms of which Providence is so justly proud.

Fortunately this hell-hound was caught and his buddy, too, and chucked into prison. His lawyer made the plea that this act was not defined on the statutes as an offense, therefore he was not a criminal.

But the court held that he was at least guilty of a most grave misdemeanor—premeditated, malicious, heinous misdemeanor.

For conspiracy in restraint of trade five Toledo ice dealers have been fined $5,000 apiece and sentenced to a year in the workhouse. So the amended form of an old summer question will read: "How would you like not to be the iceman?" Is the coldness of their material reflected in their natures? No; icemen are excellent husbands, good fathers and so on, but it is the sad fact that they seem to have no friends in the community. Who is there to mourn for a convicted iceman? Not one. This is a fact, here mournfully mentioned for the benefit of sociologists.

SNAP SHOTS

By ARTHUR G. BURGOYNE.

Like the thunder of artillery at Harrisburg today,
The roar of strife arises in a most alarming way.
The Democratic delegates in hundreds gathered there
Seek one another's blood and with their clamor rend the air.

Right in the middle of the fray is gallant Colonel Jim,
Besieged by Fagan with the cry of "23 for him!"
Because the Colonel on his party creed is standing pat,
And vows by high and low to nominate a Democrat.

Nearby is Donnelly who leads the Philadelphia crowd,
He likewise for a ticket straight declares in fashion proud.
A string of Quaker delegates he carries in his train,
And they plug for "regularity" with all their might and main.

For why, the Philadelphians and Guffeyites inquire,
Should any Democrat an alien nominee desire?
Why let outsiders take the reins and lofitly dictate
Democracy's effacement in the fine old Keystone state?

At this the opposition starts a veritable storm,
And howls for Emery the great apostle of reform.
An old Republican is he; likewise a Lincolnite
But to control the Democrats he claims a sovereign right.

The Emery boom behind the scenes is backed through thick and thin
By Wanamaker's handy men, who ne'er before could win.
This time they hope for better luck. They feel they cannot lose,
If they once compel the Democrats to furl their flag and fuse.

And so the conflict rages and the atmosphere is blue,
The old Democracy, 'twould seem, is fairly rent in two.
One bunch remaining regular, the other switched away
On the Emery-Lincoln-Wanamaker-Fagan-fusion lay.

Oh, shades of Thomas Jefferson and Andy Jackson, say,
What think you of this internecine, ruinous affray?
Ye well may turn within your graves and resolutions take
To forswear your party recreant and give the same the shake.

Well done, Tillbury.

ELOPERS' MOTORS

Unique Business of a Frenchwoman.

"Mlle. Bob Walter, s'il vous plait?" The man took my card. "Mademoiselle will see you in a moment," he said. And I had just time to look round the big garage with its 20 or more motor cars of all makes, shapes and sizes when I was called in to see the proprietress, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Express.

Mlle. Bob Walter is a bustling little lady of about 35, with curly brown hair and laughing eyes. She was dressed in bright red—"the color of passionate love, for passionate love is my business," she said.

"Then it is really true, mademoiselle, and not merely a newspaper canard?"

"My elopment agency? Certainly it is true. There are two things in life which everybody considers necessary—happiness and money. There is also an old proverb about the course of true love and the rough road. Then there was Bob Walter, who was tired of doing things that everybody else had done, and wanted a new business. Et voila!"

And mademoiselle laughed at my amusement and took me to look at the elopment motor car. The carriage is a comfortable berline, a little larger than ordinary and with a roof to carry luggage.

Cupid on the Panel.

"Not that my lovers often need the roof," said Mlle. Walter. "Get in and see how comfortable it is and then I'll introduce you to the cupid."

I thought at first that she meant Frederic or Vaudoyer, who are the two chauffeurs who drive the elopement motor car—"Cupid's car," as Mlle. Bob Walter calls it.

But she didn't mean the chauffeurs; she meant the little cupid daintily painted on the panels.

"I always arrange my elopements by contract," she said. "Of course, I have a sliding scale of charges which depend on the distance the eloping couple wish to go, the likelihood of danger (an angry father has shot at 'Cupid's car' before now), and the different details. I have been wonderfully lucky. Of the six elopements which I have organized five have ended in happy marriages, and that the sixth did not do so was the young man's own fault.

"Que voulez-vous? He was young, he was in love, he was foolish, and he was therefore ridiculously proud of himself for carrying off the lady. In consequence of these things his first care when he got fairly started was to send telegrams to all his friends, saying that nothing could prevent the marriage now. L'imbecile!

Foolish Telegrams.

"He forgot that everybody who received a telegram would know where it came from, and therefore which way he had gone. The lady's father arrived here, almost speechless with excitement, about two hours and a half after his daughter had been carried off. 'Madame,' he said, when he could talk, 'my daughter has been carried off by a scoundrel——'

"'In a reddish-brown motor, with a little cupid on the door,' said I, laughing at him.

"Then he called me a magician and his savior and an angel and other things that men call women when they lose their heads, and offered me a large sum of money if I would catch the runaways. It was not very difficult. Of course, I knew the way they had gone and I sent him off in a quicker car than the Cupid, under the charge of Vaudoyer, for Frederic was on duty with Cupid that day.

"I gave Vaudoyer orders to use his discretion when he caught up with the runaways, and if he thought they looked happy—those things are easily seen—to take papa off on a wild goose chase somewhere or to break down conveniently. Cupid's car never does break down; that is its peculiarity.

"Vaudoyer, when he caught the eloping pair up not far from Rambouillet, saw them sitting in different corners of the car looking out of different windows. So he shouted to Frederic to stop, and drew up in front of him, barring his passage. The rest was simple. Papa and the young man danced round one another in the road a little and then the two men changed cars, papa and his daughter going home in Cupid and the young man, thinking over his sins, alone.

The Day's Work.

"It was a good day's work for the Maison Bob Walter, but I think I would have preferred the usual happy ending. I wish I could show you my collection of letters and mementoes from my five eloped couples, but of course they are confidential. And I have a photograph of No. 1 couple's No. 1 baby, who has been christened Bob. The second couple has a baby, too, and I am godmother to that.

"But I think the most amusing present I have had yet came from the last little couple, M. Martin and Mlle. Guissez. They, if you remember, traveled as far as Bagneres de Lorme in Cupid and then dodged about all over France by train, till they got to Granville. They crossed to Jersey and are now in England somewhere.

"They have sent me the collection of their railway tickets and a set of picture postcards of all the places where they stopped."

Mlle. Bob Walter has had a remarkable career. She was born in Algeria, where her father was in the French commissariat. After her parents' death she came to Paris and formed a large circle of friends, among whom were Meissonier, Gen. Boulanger, Henri Rochefort, Van Beers, Caran d'Ache and numbers of other clever men.

Then she went on the stage, singing eighteenth century French songs to the harp. She made a success and toured all over Europe. When she came back to Paris she had tired of singing and took to dancing dances of the Loie Fuller type, with which she toured all over Europe again, and also visited London and Dublin.

"TOM" MADINE CENTRAL FIGURE IN HARTJE SUIT

cute the perjury case against Clifford Hooe, the negro coachman, who is accused of having sworn falsely that he had been intimate with Mrs. Hartje. County Detective Robinson was also an interested spectator, as was W. H. Stanton, attorney for Hooe. Exhibit No. 1 and Exhibit No. 2 Mrs. Hartje admitted writing on the stationery of the ship, although she could not state positively whether or not she had her own stationery with her.

Susie Wagner, the maid with a German accent, gave the first sensational testimony involving Mrs. Hartje's honor. Susie told a clear story, but acknowledged on cross-examination she had told Attorney Freeman in the presence of Mrs. Hartje that she knew nothing bad about her. The witness said she was 24 years of age, a German by birth and had been in this country but four years. She was an upstairs maid and remained in the Hartje house until it was closed last year, commencing in 1904.

Introducing Tom Madine.

Susie said there was another maid, a cook names Jannie and a coachman named Tom Madine, who occupied the upstairs room in the stable and was called to his breakfast by a bell from the kitchen. When asked regarding Tom's behavior in the house, a broad smile broke out all over the witness' face, as though what she remembered amused her. In answer to questions she told of Tom going upstairs to Mrs. Hartje's room after Mr. Hartje left the house, sometimes staying half an hour and sometimes much longer. She said Mrs. Hartje and Tom were sometimes in one room and sometimes in another, often in the bathroom.

Tom never went up stairs when Mr. Hartje was at home and, the witness said, often asked if he was at home, and when told he was there, always turned back. Mrs. Hartje, Susie said, was sometimes dressed in her petticoat, sometimes in her dressing jacket, and she didn't seem to care how she was dressed. She had seen her mistress dress when Tom was present many times, she said. Once when Mrs. Hartje was lying in her bed sick, Tom was lying on the floor with few clothes on.

Madine as a Handy Man.

The witness gave a description of Mrs. Hartje in the bathroom washing and Tom looking in the open door. She said that once, when Mrs. Hartje had a stiff neck and the doctor prescribed a liniment, she rubbed it, but on one occasion her mistress said "Never mind, Susie, Tom did it." On another occasion when she opened a cupboard door, Tom jumped out. Mrs. Hartje was in the room, and said she did not know Tom was in there; that she guessed he wanted to frighten her. Sometimes, she said, Mrs. Hartje and Tom were on good terms and on other occasions they quarreled and Tom was very rough to her. On one occasion, when Mrs. Hartje wanted Tom to take her out driving, and he didn't want to, the witness said Tom swore, calling Mrs. Hartje a — — — and said that she could go to h—l. That was not in her presence, however, but before the witness. If Mrs. Hartje would come downstairs, Tom would follow. If she went into the kitchen, Tom followed. If she ate her breakfast in the dining-room, Tom would stay there. Tom went where she went, said the witness. She found them in the laundry together once and once in the cellar, she said.

The recital of Susie stirred up Mrs. Hartje considerably. She looked about and wiped her face continually, although she followed every word of the witness and once or twice on cross-examination consulted with Mr. Freeman. Susie's examination continues:

Sitting on the Table.

Q.—Did you notice anything that happened one day when Tom and Mrs. Hartje were in the kitchen, something about the kitchen table? A.—Yes. I came into the kitchen to make some starch, and they were sitting on the kitchen table with their arms around each other. They jumped down and Mrs. Hartje ran out. She came back crying in awhile and said Mr. Hartje wanted her to go away on a visit and that she did not want to leave her children.

Q.—Well, when they were sitting on the table there with their arms around each other, was Mrs. Hartje crying or not? A.—I didn't see that.

Q.—Do you recollect about a talk with Mrs. Hartje about the family going to Europe? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Mrs. Hartje tell you anything about "Tom"? A.—Yes, she said "Tom" was going to Europe, too, on the 7th of June.

Q.—Well, then, you were with the family until they went to Europe? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you recollect of anything that occurred on the front porch of the day that they left for Europe? A.—Yes, sir. I went upstairs then, and when I came down "Tom" was crying on the porch, and Mrs. Hartje was crying in the kitchen. Mrs. Hartje said "Tom" was crying because Mr. Hartje wouldn't let him stay in the stable while they were away.

While the Family Waited.

Q.—And the family were out on the front porch waiting for the car? A.—Yes.

Q.—Well, do you recollect an occasion when Mr. Hartje and some of the children were at Mr. Clemens? A.—Mr. Hartje, Mrs. Hartje and the two children went, Mrs. Hartje came home in about four days with Louise, and Scott remained with his father.

Q.—Where was that house? A.—On Wineb1ddle avenue.

Q.—Was the house empty? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did anybody go to that house? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Well, when did Mrs. Hartje come home? A.—She came home on a Thursday.

The witness then told of Mrs. Hartje going to the Scott homestead with her children and herself.

Q.—How long did Mrs. Hartje, Tom, Mary, Louise and you stay at the Scott house? A.—Several days.

Q.—Where did Tom stay? A.—At the Scott house.

Q.—Where did Mrs. Hartje sleep? A.—In her father's room.

Q.—And where did Tom sleep? A.—In a little room next to the room that Mrs. Hartje slept in.

Q.—Was there any connection between the two rooms? A.—A door.

Q.—When would Tom, leave the Scott house. A.—In the morning he would go out for his breakfast, and then he would come back to Scott's again and get another breakfast.

Helped Himself to Collars.

Q.—When Mr. Hartje was away from the house, if Tom wanted a collar what would he do? A.—He went to Mr. Hartje's drawer and helped himself. If Mr. Hartje was there he would tell Mrs. Hartje he wanted a clean collar, and she would get one for him.

Q.—Do you recollect an occasion when Mr. Hartje was away from home? A.—No.

Q.—But do you know that Mr. Hartje was away once? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you recollect what Tom did when Mr. Hartje went away? A—Well, Tom was to sleep in the hallway and I was going to fix things up, but Mrs. Hartje said she would attend to that.

Q.—Where was Mrs. Hartje's room? Did she have the same room as the children? A—Yes.

Q.—Tom was supposed to be sleeping on the couch? A—Yes. On the couch in the hall.

Q.—Do you recollect if Tom got money from Mrs. Hartje? A—Yes. Tom got money to go to the theater.

Q.—Anything else? A—Yes. She paid his laundry bill, too.

Q.—When Mr. Hartje was away did Tom ever show any sign that he wanted money? A—Yes, he wanted to see Mrs. Hartje once when Mr. Hartje was home, and he couldn't find her in the kitchen, so he went out to the stable and banged the stable door again and again. The girls often saw a purse in the laundry, and they didn't known where it came from.

When Madine Was Sick.

Q—Well, was Tom sick at any time when you were there? A—Yes, he became sick with his stomach once.

Q—Do you remember if Tom was ever sick in bed? A.—Yes, he was, once.

Q—What did Mrs. Hartje do then? A—She cek him out things to eat; tea, and such things.

Q—Well, can you tell us now if you know of Mrs. Hartje ever going to the stable? A—Yes, she was there most every day.

Q—How long did she stay there? A—Sometimes a half hour, sometimes an hour.

Q—Do you recollect any time when Tom went away? A—Yes, he went once to see his brother.

Q—Did Mrs. Hartje say anything about letters? A—Yes, she said if any came not to put them in the library on the table, but to keep them for her about my person.

Q—Did any letters come for her? A—Yes, one.

Q—Susie, do you remember a call to the telephone for Mrs. Hartje? A—Yes

Q—Where were you? A—Upstairs. I was at the telephone. Mr. Hartje was speaking. He asked me where Mrs. Hartje was. I said she was in the stable. Then I called her and they talked together.

Q—And then? A—Then Mrs. Hartje told me never to tell Mr. Hartje she was in the stable.

Q—Do you recollect another occasion when Tom went to the telephone? A—Yes; Whenever Mrs. Hartje went out she always called up Tom and told him where she was. Once the telephone bell rang when Mrs. Hartje was sick. Tom was in her bedroom and he answered the telephone. It was Mr. Scott, Mrs. Hartje's father, and Mrs. Hartje got out of bed and talked over the telephone in her nightgown. Tom was standing there.

Sunday Morning Calls.

Q—Do you recollect whether Mr. Hartje had a habit of taking out the children on Sunday morning? A—Yes, he often took them out then. Then Mrs. Hartje would ring to tell Tom to come over to her.

Q—Did Tom come over? A—Yes.

Q—In what room did they go? A—Sometimes one place, sometimes another.

Q—How long did Tom stay? A—Until Mr. Hartje came home.

Q—On Sundays when Mr. Hartje was at home did Tom go upstairs and stay with Mrs. Hartje? A—No; when Mr. Hartje was at home he never went.

Q—When Tom went upstairs did he knock? A—No, he went right in.

Q—Do you remember how she was dressed on any occasion when he would come into her room? A—Sometimes she was only in her petticoat. Once she was ashamed when I came in.

Q—Did Tom go straight to Mrs. Hartje's room when he went to see her? A—He'd go to one room, and if he didn't find her there, he would go and look for her in other rooms.

Q—And he went to see her without knocking? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Do you know who cleaned Tom's room in the stable? A—Mrs. Hartje; and sometimes she took me over to help her.

Q—Do you remember, when Grandma Hartje came to visit Mrs. Hartje and what happened them? A—Yes. Grandmother Hartje came once, and she went upstairs and called "Mary," but she got no answer. She came downstairs and said Mrs. Hartje wasn't there. I went up and looked through all the rooms, and couldn't find her. Finally I found her in the bathroom. It was locked and she said she would be down in a few minutes. I couldn't find Tom around anywhere, but shortly after Mrs. Hartje came down I saw him.

Q—Did you hear any talk between Tom and Mrs. Hartje about grandma? A—No.

Q—I wish you would tell his honor what you saw about Mrs. Hartje's dress when Tom was in the room with her. A—She were just a petticoat often, and only the top button was buttoned.

Played Ball With Flannel Cake.

Q—Do you remember once when Mrs. Hartje was cooking come flannel cakes? A—Yes. Once we didn't have a cook and she cooked the flannel cakes. Tom and I were eating an orange.

Q—She picked up a flannel cake, and what did she do with it? A—She threw it to Tom.

Q—And what did Tom do with it? A—He threw it back to her.

Q—Do you remember once when Mrs. Hartje was making a pudding or something and there was a bottle of whisky or brandy there? A—Yes; Tom drank out of the bottle, and Mrs. Hartje said: "Now, Tom, you know Mr. Hartje wouldn't like it if he knew you were drinking from his bottle."

Q—Do you remember about any notes? A—Yes. Once Mrs. Hartje was in the kitchen and so was Tom. Mrs. Hartje wrote something on a piece of paper and gave it to Tom. He turned it over and wrote something else on the back.

Q—Did they seem to be in a good humor? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Do you remember of her ever going to Memphis? A—Yes.

Tom Gets a Ring.

Q—Did she give him any present? A—Yes; she gave him a ring.

Q—Do you remember of her giving him any other presents? A—Yes. Once I saw a ring lying on Mrs. Hartje's chiffonier. Some time later I went to her room, and Mrs. Hartje asked me if I had seen Tom's new ring. I said "no." She said, "Go and look at it." I said, "Where is Tom?" She said, "In the kitchen." Then I went down to the kitchen and saw Tom with the same ring I had seen before in Mrs. Hartje's room. I said to Tom, "Who gave you that fine ring?" He said, "My girl." I said, "How much did it cost?" He said, "Thirty-five dollars." I asked him if he gave her anything in return, and he said that he hadn't.

Q—Do you know who took care of Tom's clothes? A—Mrs. Hartje fixed his clothes and put his dirty clothes in the laundry. Once he had a vest with a button off, and he took it upstairs and she fixed it for him.

Q—Do you know anything about Tom getting any letters while Mrs. Martje was away? A—Yes, when she was in Memphis he told me he got a letter from her, but I don't know what was in it.

Q—Did Tom make any use of the bathroom on the second floor when Mr. Hartje was at home? A—Yes, he went sometimes to get some powders.

"Cross-examine," said Attorney Rodg-Mr. Freeman began a rapid fire of questions, and rose to his feet in front of the witness to speak to her. He asked her who had paid her way to Europe, and she said she had paid her own way, but that Mr. Hartje had paid her fare coming back.

Q—He sent your brother for you, and paid your brother's way to Germany and back? A—Yes.

Q—Mr. Augustus Hartje and Mr. Ed Hartje met you in New York? A—Yes.

Q—Mr. Ed Hartje met you at the boat? A—Yes.

Q—And took you to a hotel, where you met Mr. Augustus Hartje? And they talked to you in reference to Mr. Hartje's separation from his wife? A—Yes, but they told me they didn't want to know anything but the truth.

Q—They told you what Fannie and Katie had said, 'you know the same things?' A—Yes.

Q—Where did you see Mr. Hartje next? A—At my aunt's house.

Q—Where are you working now? A—With Mrs. Thorn.

Q—That is a sister of Mr. Hartje? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Do you remember making a statement in my office? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did you see a stenographer there, who took down what you said? A—Yes, but I thought it was Mr. Scott's office. Mrs. Martje said: 'Isn't my father in?' And you said, 'No,' and she said, 'He must be sick again.'

Q—You made a statement to my stenographer? A—Yes.

Q—And you said there you didn't know anything bad about Mrs. Hartje?

Attorney Ferguson objected to the question.

The attorneys argued for a few minutes and Judge Frazer said he thought it was perfectly proper to ask the question. "If Mr. Freeman attempts to use the statement," said the court, "Mr. Rodgers may see it."

Attorneys Start an Argument.

You said in my office you didn't know anything bad about Mrs. Hartje?

Mr. Freeman repeated his question, and the witness said again she had said that she could say nothing bad about Mrs. Hartje.

Q—And you told me that Ed Hartje and Gust Hartje had told you what Fannie said, and that you knew the same? A—Yes.

Q—And you told me that you had never seen Tom lay a hand on Mrs. Tartje?

The witness evaded the question time and again.

Attorney Freeman had to ask the question five times.

The witness finally answered "Yes."

"You admit, then, that you lied?"

Judge Frazer told Mr. Freeman not to call the witness a liar.

"This is most remarkable," said Mr. Rodgers. "And we have not the statement."

"Yes, and the suppression of it," chimed in Mr. Marron.

But the court said the question was all right.

Then Attorneys Marron and Ferguson objected to Mr. Freeman's manner of cross-examining. "He shouldn't point his finger at her that way," said Attorney Ferguson.

"The cross-examination must be made in a proper manner," said the court.

"Well, you did say to me that you never saw 'Tom' lay a finger on Mrs. Hartje, didn't you?" asked Mr. Freeman.

"Yes," the witness said.

"Didn't you say, in the presence of Mrs. Hartje, Mr. Mathews and myself that you had made a statement to Ed Hartje, and that you told him the same as you told me? And you said that there was nothing bad about Mrs. Hartje?"

Trying to Corner the Witness.

The witness squirmed figuratively, and finally answered "Yes."

"Didn't you tell me that Fannie told you that 'Tom' was upstairs?"

"No, I did not?"

"Have you talked to Fannie about this case?"

"No, I haven't seen her for five or six months."

"And you didn't say to me that Mr. Hartje asked you if you had ever seen Mrs. Hartje talking at some time to Gus McConnell or talking to him over the telephone?"

"I never saw him talking to her."

Attorneys Ferguson and Rodgers again objected, saying that they demanded that Mr. Freeman produce the witness' statement.

The court overruled them.

"Did you not say to me that Mr. Augustus Hartje told you that you need not be afraid because you had taken money out of Mrs. Hartje's pocketbook?"

The witness evaded answering directly, but finally admitted that she had once been caught taking money.

"You worked at Mrs. Morris Kaufmann's before you worked at Hartje's, didn't you?" asked Mr. Freeman.

"Yes, sir."

"And you stole a feather from her, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir; she said so, but it was not so."

"Didn't an officer come and threaten to arrest you at the Scott home?"

A strenuous objection was registered.

"I'll show that this witness is an admitted thief," shouted Mr. Freeman.

But Mr. Ferguson was on his feet protesting again, whereupon Mr. Freeman said:

What They Want to Prove.

"We have a right to show by the witness' own testimony that she is a thief."

Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Rogers said that was all right, but when Mr. Freeman began to question her about her having been threatened with arrest, it was going too far with the witness.

Judge Frazer said he was not so sure of that. Mr. Freeman said he was and could furnish authority for his position.

Judge Frazer then said:

"We will adjourn court until 1 o'clock when we will hear your authority."

In the afternoon the question concerning the point of law was at once taken up.

Attorney Rodgers cited the authority for objecting to Mr. Freeman's question if an officer had come to the Scott house to arrest the witness.

"You can't try two cases together," said Mr. Ferguson. "The witness has said she did not steal the feather. Now, are you going to follow that up? Suppose that as the case goes on witness after witness is attacked.

"The witness is indorsed by the very defendant. Why, here is this letter."

Mr. Ferguson tried to offer the letter as evidence. Mr. Freeman objected, and the objection was sustained.

The witness admitted that an officer came to the Scott house to arrest her. She also admitted in answer to questions that Mr. Hartje advanced her $20 to pay for the feather.

Witness Makes Denial.

"Didn't you also say, on October 11, 1905, in my office, 'that you never saw Mrs. Hartje do anything unladylike in the presence of 'Tom'?"

"A Mr. Walthers and Miss Helen Scott were present at that interview," said Attorney Freeman, in answer to an objection by Attorney Ferguson.

"I didn't say that," said the witness.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, sir."

"Didn't you say at the same interview that you never saw Tom kiss Mrs. Hartje or put his arms around her or do anythink like that?"

"Yes, I said it," the witness admitted, after the question had been repeated a number of times.

"Didn't you say that you didn't know any of these things that you have been testifying to now until the cook told you, and then that you were surprised?"

The question was objected to, and Mr. Freeman let the question pass.

"Didn't Tom have work to do upstairs?" asked Attorney Freeman.

"I don't know what he did."

"Didn't he wash the dishes sometimes?"

"Not that I saw. The only time I saw him work upstairs was when he was changing the sheets of the bed. Mrs. Hartje told me to come up and see him work."

"That's all," said Attorney Freeman.

Mr. Rodgers then began a re-direct examination.

Witness Saw Mrs. Hartje.

"You never knew Mr. Madine to do any work upstairs?"

"No."

Mr. Rodgers then showed the witness a letter, "Exhibit 6," sent to her by Mrs. Hartje, which the witness identified.

Q.—Well, Susie, before you went to this lawyer's office, had you seen Mrs. Hartje? A.—Mrs. Hartje came to see me at my sister's house.

Q.—Where did Mrs. Hartje want you to go? A.—To her father's house.

Q.—Why did she want you to go to her father's house? A.—She asked me if I didn't want to go to take supper and just see the children.

Q.—You were at your sister's house. Where is that? A.—In Allegheny.

She said Mrs. Hartje had gone to see her.

Q.—So you—well, how long did she talk to you? A.—She talked all the time, and said my clothes were all right.

Q.—Well, when you came to Pittsburgh? A.—Why, then, I said that we would take the car, but we went instead and had some lunch. After that she said we would go to her father's office. We went to an office and she said she guessed her father must be sick again.

Q.—What happened then? A.—They asked me questions—who was with me on the steamer, how Mr. Hartje met me, I told them exactly the truth. They asked me if Mr. Hartje was not always drunk and cross, and I said "No."

Q.—How long did you stay there? A.—I stayed until the gentlemen left, and then Mrs. Hartje took me to her father's house.

Q.—How long did you remain there? A.—After supper I went home.

Q.—When did you come back to Pittsburgh from this trip to Germany? A.—I can't exactly remember. I lived with my sister after that. Then I went to Mrs. Kahn's, where I went away from about five weeks ago.

Q.—How did you come to leave Mr. Kahn's and go to Dr. Thorn's? A.—Mr. Kahn did not like it because I was constantly being questioned about the Hartjes' troubles.

Just Borrowed a Quarter.

Q.—Now, Susie, tell me about that quarter. A.—Well, Mrs. Hartje owed me money, and I took a quarter because I needed it. Mrs. Hartje used to borrow money from me and give it to Tom.

Q.—Well, Susie, what was that about paying the Kaufmanns for the feather? A.—I was asked if I had taken the feather. I said I hadn't, and was told I would be arrested. Mrs. Hartje offered to lend me the money and I didn't want to go to jail, so I accepted the loan.

"I propose now to read this letter written by Mrs. Hartje to 'Susie,'" said Attorney Ferguson.

This was objected to, but the objection was not sustained.

Attorney Ferguson then read as follows:

My Dear Susie—Now, Susie, I have not heard one word from you. I live with mamma. We want you to come and work for us. Mamma has three girls. We have it very nice. Susie, I know you always liked me, and I want you to be by my side. Now please, Susie, come home as soon as you can, and I will help to find your trunk. You promised to be with me all my life, and you will have a good home. Mamma has a beautiful new place and a lovely new house. I am, always,

MRS. AUGUSTUS HARTJE.

Cook Tells Her Story.

Katie Schimpf, a cook in the employ of Dr. Thorn, was called as a witness. She went to work for the Hartjes in February, 1905, and stayed with them seven weeks.

Q—Do you know when Mr. Hartje left home in the morning? Mr. Rodgers asked her. A—About 7 o'clock.

Q—When did Tom Madine get his breakfast? A—At 8 or 9 o'clock.

Q—After Tom got his breakfast where did he generally go? A—He went upstairs.

Q—How long did he stay upstairs? A—Sometimes an hour and sometimes all morning.

Q—Who was up there besides Tom? A—Mrs. Hartje and Susie.

Q—Did you ever hear their conversation? A—No.

Q—Did you ever hear Tom talking roughly to Mrs. Hartje? A—No; but I heard him swear in her presence. He swore at me once and once at Susie.

Q—Did Mrs. Hartje ever go to the stable? A—Yes, I often had to call her from the stable.

Q—When she was in the house and in the stable, how was she dressed? A—She wasn't dressed very neat. Sometimes she just had on a petticoat.

Q—When she was dressed that way, did the presence of Tom make any difference in her actions? A—No, sir.

Q—What did Tom do upstairs, when he was up there with Mrs. Hartje? A—Well, he talked to her.

Q—How did Mrs. Hartje and Tom act together? A—They always seemed to get along all right.

Threw Water at Each Other.

Q—Do you recollect if Mrs. Hartje and Tom played together? A—Yes, sir; they used to throw water at each other, and laugh like a young couple. Once they played with a dead mouse.

I saw Tom standing by the looking-glass one day when Mrs. Hartje was lying on the lounge. She had her dress away up to her knees.

Q—You were in the dining room at the time? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Who was in the house at that time? A—Nobody, except me and Tom and Mrs. Hartje.

Q—Do you recollect something that happened on a Thursday afternoon? A—Yes.

Q—Where were you? A—Upstairs in my room.

Q—What did you hear? A—He started to curse and swear.

Q—Who was he talking to, Mrs. Hartje? A—Yes.

Q—And then? A—Then he went downstairs swearing and cursing, and saying that was a — — — house. He asked her for money. She said she didn't have any. He said if she would give him 10 cents, he would go and get the money himself.

Q—What happened then? A—I went down into the dining room. Mrs. Hartje was crying and she said: 'Don't go, Idie.' Then I went upstairs again and Mrs. Hartje lay down on the bed, half covered, and Tom was with her.

Q—Now were they talking at that time? A—They were talking easy.

Q—Well, you might tell us whether Tom and Mrs. Hartje were together for a great deal of the time when Mr. Hartje was away?

This was objected to and Attorney Rodgers revised his question. The witness said she never saw a coachman act that way in the house.

"Well, did he take any authority about the house when Mr. Hartje was away?"

The witness said she did not know.

"Do you know anything as to what rooms upstairs Tom would be in with Mrs. Hartje?"

"I couldn't say."

Cook Is Cross-Examined.

The cross-examination was then begun by Mr. Freeman.

Q—You say you could hear Mrs. Hartje and Tom talking? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Were you ever upstairs? A—Sometimes in my room.

Q—Where was the lounge on which you say you saw Mrs. Hartje lying? A—Downstairs in the hall.

Q—Where was you when you saw him? A—I was in the dining doom.

Q—Where was Tom? A—Standing by the looking glass combing his hair.

Q—Why did you leave Mrs. Hartje? A—She did not need a cook any more. They were going away.

Q—As a matter of fact, Mrs. Hartje discharged you on account of your conduct, didn't she, because you had so many men coming to the house? The witness thought this was funny, and laughed as she humorously resented the question.

Q—Are you married? The witness refused to answer until the question had been put three times, when she answered, "Yes, sir."

Q—Were you living with your husband when you were with Mrs. Hartje? A—No, sir.

Q—And Mrs. Hartje discharged you because you kept so much whisky in the kitchen, didn't she? A—Oh, no, sir.

Q—Do you mean to say you never kept a bottle of whisky in the kitchen? A—No, I never had.

Q—And didn't you have men coming to see you? A—Only one young man, a friend.

Q—Was there anything improper about Mrs. Hartje making toast for Tom? A—Well, I thought it was very funny for the "missus" of the house to make toast for the coachman. This occurred after breakfast.

Q—Are you sure? A—Yes, it was after breafast.

Q.—And the children weren't in the room at that time? A.—I don't remember.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE

Agrees With Him About Food.

A trained nurse says: "In the practice of my profession I have found so many points in favor of Grape-Nuts food that I unhesitatingly recommend it to all my patients.

"It is delicate and pleasing to the palate (an essential in food for the sick) and can be adapted to all ages, being softened with milk or cream for babies or the aged when deficiency of teeth renders mastication impossible. For fever patients or those on liquid diet I find Grape-Nuts and albumen water very nourishing and refreshing. This recipe is my own idea and is made as follows: Soak a teaspoonful of Grape-Nuts in a glass of water for an hour, strain and serve with the beaten white of an egg and a spoonful of fruit juice or flavoring. This affords a great deal of nourishment that even the weakest stomach can assimilate without any distress.

"My husband is a physician and he uses Grape-Nuts himself and orders it many times for his patients.

"Personally I regard a dish of Grape-Nuts with fresh or stewed fruit as the ideal breakfast for anyone—well or sick." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

In any case of stomach trouble, nervous prostration or brain fag, a 10 days' trial of Grape-Nuts will work wonders toward nourishing and rebuilding, and in this way ending the trouble. "There's a reason" and trial proves.

MECHANICAL STOKERS ARE BEING PLACED

Schoenberger Plant Preparing to Check Contribution of Smoke.

EQUIPPING BOILERS

Result Awaited by Other Industrial Concerns, Which May Follow Example.

MANAGER MAKES STATEMENT

What is considered the most important and beneficial result of the anti-smoke crusade inaugurated by The Gazette Times, and a worthy example for all other industrial plants in this community to follow, is the fact that the American Steel & Wire Company has decided to equip its immense Schoenberger plant at Fifteenth street with mechanical stokers, and is now engaged in installing these devices. The company is a subsidiary organization of the United States Steel Corporation.

The Schoenberger plant has long been a large contributor of smoke to the heavy blanket which daily hovers over the lower section of the city. This, however, has not been permitted without efforts on the part of the company to eliminate the evil. Several years ago a number of smoke-consuming devices were installed, but these proved inefficient. The recent crusade and the testimony of experts regarding mechanical stokers induced the officers of the company to take up the matter again, with the result that stokers are now being installed in all the boilers of the company, which aggregate 7,000 horsepower.

C. L. Miller, vice president and general manager of the American Steel & Wire Company, yesterday said:

"Yes, it is true that we are installing mechanical stokers in all the boilers of the Schoenberger plant. We hope they will aid in eliminating at least a good proportion of the smoke now produced, and if they do so we shall consider the money wisely applied. We are willing to do our share in ridding the city of the smoke nuisance. However, I do not believe that all of the smoke now produced throughout the city can be averted, but I also believe that a considerable proportion can be avoided. Our entire 7,000 horsepower boiler plant is being equipped with mechanical stokers which have been thoroughly investigated, and we believe that they will do the desired work. Some time ago we installed smoke-consuming devices that failed of their purpose, but we hope for better success this time."

The civic pride shown by the American Steel & Wire Company in voluntarily installing smoke-consuming devices was the subject of general commendation in financial and business circles yesterday. The result attained with mechanical stokers in so large a plant as the Schoenberger works will be watched with interest, and should the devices prove all that is anticipated, the demonstration will serve as an unanswerable rebuke to all plants which may persist in polluting the atmosphere and working determent to the interests of the city.

SAN FRANCISCO IS NOT BUYING DIAMONDS NOW

Earthquake Puts a Stop to the Purchase of Costly Gems on the Pacific Coast.

"The diamond business is falling off," said J. L. Rhodes, a diamond dealer of New York, last night, while he was waiting for the limited to carry him west. For the past 29 years, he said, he carried a fortune in diamonds in his pocket, distributing them from New York to Chicago. In San Francisco before the earthquake, his sales ran up to 100 carats of diamonds during the Christmas holidays, and the returns amounted to many thousands of dollars. "Now," he said, "there will be no more diamonds sold near the Golden Gate, and I have been ordered to cut out the earthquake city on this tour. Semi-precious stones have now got the call, and the middle west is our best market. Peridots, golden topazes, rebuilt rubies, moonstones and Mexican opals are now being made into necklaces, and they are the best sales we have. The commercial white diamond is not selling well in the west, and we can only handle the best class of diamonds west of the Mississippi river."

Capt. H. E. Palmer, superintendent of the Nebraska Soldiers' home, passed through Pittsburgh last night to attend a meeting of the board of directors in New York. When seen at the Union station he said that he expected the meeting would decide to make the Nebraska Soldiers' home the finest in the world.

Barchfeld the Orator.

Dr. A. J. Barchfeld, "the big long doctor," of the South Side, representing the Thirty-second Pennsylvania congressional district, seems to be in demand as an orator for patriotic anniversaries and celebrations. On Decoration Day of this year he was the principal orator at the memorial service held at Bunker Hill, Boston, and on next Wednesday at Philadelphia, he will make the eagle scream once more at old Independence hall, having accepted yesterday from the hands of a committee of Philadelphia councils, an invitation to make the annual Fourth of July address at the historical old pile. Congressman Barchfeld was in good humor to accept this invitation, it seeming to him just after a mountainous job had been made the Pittsburgh postoffice bill, providing $1,000,000 for a new postoffice site, had passed.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

WATERWAYS WILL MODIFY RATES

Democratic M. C. Has More Faith in Them Than in "Susceptible Commission."

NEED OF MORALITY HERE

"I voted for the railroad rate bill, for I believe in any measure pointing to the regulation of railroad rates, but I have far more confidence in the natural waterways of God than I have in a billion dollar railroad trust under the direction of a susceptible commission of nine or ten men. Give me free and improved waterways and no community will have need for a rate bill."

So declared Congressman Joseph E. Ransdall of Louisville, a Democratic member of the house, before 400 guests at the first joint meeting of the chamber of commerce and Merchants and Manufacturers' association ever held in this city, at a dinner given in Hotel Annex last night in behalf of better waterways.

Nor was the discussion of the speakers devoted exclusively to waterways and their improvement. Congressman Charles B. Landis of Indiana took occasion to make a dramatic plea in verse for a better standard of righteousness in Pittsburgh under a poem-title: "Pittsburgh, Give Us Business, But Give Us Men." In introducing this theme he made a reference that was too clear to be misunderstood by the guests in the following words: "Get rich, make money—as individuals and as a city—remember, as a family in this city remembers tonight, that old traditions are best. We need a resurrection of old-time virtues of morality and good conduct. Give us men."

Telegrams of Congratulation Sent.

Col. A. J. Logan acted as chairman and President Fred R. Babcock as toastmaster. The latter read messages of regret from Congressmen J. Adam Bede, A. J. Barchfeld, James Francis Burke, W. H. Graham and John Dalzell. The Pennsylvania congressmen were detained in Washington to assist in the passage of the $1,000,000 postoffice bill, and a telegram of congratulation was sent them.

While much valuable data and convincing logic was offered by the speakers regarding the necessity of waterway improvements Congressman Ransdall took opportunity to make the first public announcement of the plan of the executive committee of the National Rivers and Harbors congress, of which he is chairman, to raise a fund of $50,000 for the employment of trained newspapermen as press agents in order to institute a campaign of education in behalf of the watchword of the organization: "In improved waterways bill carrying an annual appropriation of $50,000,000." He cited the success of the irrigation project through the establishment of such a press bureau.

Congressman Landis paid tribute to the decision rendered here in the Allegheny bridge case, which he termed a precedent of national benefit. He gave statistics showing the meagerness of the river and harbors appropriation and the great difference between railroad and river rates, and after quoting President J. J. Hill of the Union Pacific railroad on river improvement declared: "I have little opinion of his judgment when it comes to waterways. He is a prejudiced witness."

Landis Tells of Congress' Work.

Congressman Landis admitted coming from "the banks of the Wabash," and testified that "the only simon-pure banquet he ever attended in his life was as a guest of the Americus club eight years ago." After pledging himself to vote for any bill which the rivers and harbors committee might present he launched into the following review of the present session of congress, which brought forth a tumult of applause:

"We have been doing some great things during the present session of congress. I think it has been the most effective in my 10 years' experience. We have enacted laws that curb and check and are immediate in application. It has been a bitter fight against greed, grasping and shame. It was not a partisan session. The rate bill, pure food measure and meat inspection bill found Republicans and Democrats fighting side by side; but we were led in that work by a captain with a conscience, will and courage that would admit no defeat—we were led by the President of the United States." (Loud applause.)

Congressman Ernest F. Acheson told of the wealth of this community and the necessity of improved waterways here, while Congressman B. G. Humphreys of Mississippi, whose father was a Confederate general in the civil war, marveled at time's work in changing sentiment, when Pennsylvania invites a Mississippi representative to talk on a national measure. He dwelt upon the prevailing error of divided efforts in seeking river improvements for selfish purposes and indorsed Congressman Ransdall's project to establish a national press bureau. He referred to the improvements on the upper Sunflower, Wabash and Suwanee rivers in a humorous vein.

PROBERS EXPOSE MORE CITY GRAFT

Employes of Bureau of Electricity Make Easy Money by Selling City Material.

ADJOURNMENT TO SEPT. 15

A startling expose of graft that is alleged to have existed in the bureau of electricity under the administration of Mayor Hays and his cousin, Supt. J. A. Herron, concluded the labors of the investigating committee of councils last night for the summer, the committee adjourning to meet at the call of the chairman not later than September 15.

The committee in executive session approved communications to Mayor Guthrie officially apprising him of the conditions discovered in the police and electricity bureaus and the city weighmaster's office, and also making the charge that "fraud and dishonesty exists in many departments" of the city government, while in all departments there is a lack of system that encourages incompetency and graft. The mayor will be furnished with a copy of the testimony taken in the investigation of the three branches of the city administration. W. H. Melaney proposed that a copy of the evidence also be given to the district attorney, William Brand supporting this motion, but it was not adopted, Examiner Metcalf objecting.

That employes of the bureau of electricity, some of them still on the city payroll, deliberately carried away and sold as junk, pocketing the proceeds, costly copper wire and other material belonging to the city was testified to under oath before the investigating committee by a number of witnesses. It was also sworn that valuable tools, the property of the city, were purloined and that the time and labor of city employes were used to enrich a contractor who was related to one of the foremen of the bureau.

Charles Snyder, driver of the bureau, said he had been ordered by Foreman Thomas Hannan to haul a load of tools, consisting of shovels, picks and bars, from the city warehouse in Tunnel street to the West Belt railroad depot in Stuben street, West End, to ship the tools to Castle Shannon. Three men besides himself were sent along to unload the wagon. The tools never came back.

Driver Snyder told of "Jack" Hannan having been given the contract to stretch a cable from an engine house in First avenue to one in Fourth avenue and having been again supplied with city labor under the direction of his brother, Foreman "Tom" Hannan.

Superintendent R. J. Dailey, who succeeded J. A. Herron in charge of the bureau, gave some spicy testimony. He said he was appointed on April 12 and he discharged four employes on May 1.

"I saw that I was up against a gang that I had to get rid of or quit myself, and so I discharged them," said the new superintendent.

He found that $125 had been paid for alarm boxes that could be bought for $60 to $70; $100 for gongs that could be bought for $35 to $40, and $25 to $35 was paid for tickers that could be bought for $12 each.

Additional evidence was taken in regard to the city scales. C. F. Eback, former weighmaster, was put on the stand, and said he had been suspended from his job as an inspector of sewers yesterday owing to the disclosures at the last meeting of the committee. More tickets were produced to show that the city has sustained heavy losses in the returns from the scales. One ticket showed that $1 60 had been collected for weighing potatoes and the corresponding stub showed that only 15 cents had been turned into the city treasury. In another instance $1 70 was collected, while the city only received seven cents.

Director Clark was called to the stand. He said that he gave the weighmaster whom he appointed no instructions about the city scales. He had told him to follow the schedule with which the clerk, having served some time, was familiar.

PHYSICIAN IS HELD FOR MURDER

Dr. J. W. Chace Goes Back to Jail—Picnic Fight Results in Death.

JOHNSTON DIES OF WOUNDS

Dr. James W. Chace of 815 Wylie avenue was held by a coroner's jury yesterday on a charge of murder. The case will now go before the grand jury. Dr. Chace is charged with performing an operation on Mrs. Sadie E. Chance, wife of Charles H. Chance. The woman died at her home, 55 Durango street, on June 18. Mrs. Frank Ellis, sister-in-law of Mrs. Chance, testified she had gone to the office of Dr. Chace with Mrs. Chance when the latter made the first visit. She also told of the visit Dr. Chace made to the home to see Mrs. Chance. The latter, according to the witness, saw an advertisement in a newspaper that led her to call at Dr. Chace's office. Dr. M. S. McKennan and Dr. F. F. Simpson testified they had heard the statement made by Mrs. Chance in which she implicated Dr. Chace. Dr. McKennan, who was the family physician, said the woman was in her right mind when she made the statement. Dr. Chace made denial of the charges against him. After the hearing he was returned to jail, but expresses confidence of being released on bail within a few days. He was represented at the inquest by Attorneys C. E. Theobald and John C. Haymaker. It was brought out that Dr. Chace is not registered as a physician in Allegheny county.

Andrew R. Johnston, aged 25, a resident of Forty-third street, died yesterday at the West Penn hospital of a stab wound while engaged in a fight at a picnic at Aliquippa on Monday afternoon. He was stabbed in the abdomen and the Beaver county police have arrested "Kid" Wilson of Ellwood City. Hugh Martin, aged 22, of 14 Scott street, is in the Allegheny General hospital with a wound over his heart. He was in the fight and is said to have been stabbed by a man named Chase, for whom the Beaver authorities are looking. Martin's condition is serious.

James Corrigan, a structural iron worker, who witnessed the fight, made a statement to Coroner Armstrong yesterday afternoon. He says the men quarrelled over labor unionism, all of them being structural iron workers.

Mamie Ober, aged 5, died yesterday at the home of her parents, 32 Beltzhoover avenue, of burns received on Monday afternoon while playing with matches.

Lorane Montagney, aged 55, a coal miner of Treveskyn, was killed by a Panhandle train near his home on Monday night.

Paul Plomin, aged 25, died yesterday at the Allegheny General hospital of a fractured skull. He was injured almost three months ago by a traveling crane in a Sharpsburg mill. Six weeks ago he was released from a Pittsburgh hospital, apparently in good condition. On June 11 he was taken to the Allegheny General where it was found there was a clot on the brain. An operation was performed but he did not survive it.

WIN ENTRANCE TO HIGH SCHOOL

Of 1,435 Candidates 1,236 Pass a Successful Examination for Admission.

SOME HAVE ANOTHER CHANCE

Next fall 1,236 children will be entitled to enter the Pittsburgh High school, and perhaps more, depending on the results of those re-examinations allowed. The names of those who passed were made public late last night. There were 1,435 pupils in examination. Of those who did not attain the required percentage of 74 failed entirely, 117 are entitled to a re-examination and eight are incomplete.

A feature of the examination was the remarkable unevenness in the showing made by the schools. The Brushton, Grant and Morse schools passed all their classes. The Allen, Franklin and Mt. Albion made clean sheets except for one re-examination each, and the Homewood and Lawrence each had one incomplete set of papers owing to sickness, the rest passing. The North and Ralston had but a single failure. The Liberty lost one and has two re-examinations out of a class of 171; the Hiland, one failure and four re-examinations out of 99; the Minersville, one failure and three re-examinations out of 52; the Mt. Washington, five re-examinations out of 286; the Peebles, two re-examinations out of 65; the Sterrett, one failure and one re-examination out of 47; the Thad Stevens, one failure and two re-examinations out of 15, and the Washington, one failure and two re-examinations out of 48.

On the other hand, two schools failed to pass any of their candidates. Another got 25 per cent through, while several schools had a percentage of from 30 to 40 on the wrong side.

Among the parochial schools St. Joseph's of Sharpsburg passed all its classes. Holy Cross had but one re-examination and St. Stephen's two, passing the rest of their classes.

AGREEMENT REACHED ON ERIE AND OHIO CANAL

Conference Committee Makes Three Important Changes in the Bill.

[By Private Wire to Gazette Times.]

WASHINGTON, June 26.—An agreement was reached today on the Lake Erie and Ohio river ship canal by the conferees and tomorrow the report will be sent to the senate and house. It seems probable the report will be adopted and the bill passed.

Three important changes were made by the conference committee. The provision requiring the company to get legislative consent of the states through which it passed was stricken out. Already charters have been obtained in Ohio and Pennsylvania and if this amendment remained in the bill all this would have to be done over again.

The amendment providing that a sinking fund might be set aside in lieu of dividends was also stricken out. This provision was put in at the instance of Senator Bailey, who claimed the company should not be permitted to pay dividends and set aside a sinking fund at the same time.

The provision which permits the government to take over the canal at the end of 50 years at an appraised value was put back into the bill. It was in the bill when it passed the house but was stricken out by the senate committee on commerce.

PITTSBURGH SITE CAN BE SELECTED

House Passes $1,000,000 Appropriation and Senate Will Soon Do Likewise.

BURKE EXPRESSES PLEASURE

SPECIAL TELEGRAM FROM L. W. STRAYER, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—With a unanimity seldom seen in connection with the passage of any measure, the public building bill went through the house today in record time. It carries authorizations of work to cost $21,000,000. But one or two weak voiced Democrats who failed to get public buildings voted against it.

Pittsburgh was the star of the performance, leading every other city in the country with $1,000,000 for a site for its new postoffice, the largest sum ever allowed for a site for any public building. Tomorrow the senate committee on public buildings and grounds will meet and probably report the bill to the senate in the afternoon, making it possible for the bill to be ready for conference Wednesday night or Thursday morning and become a law in short order. The senate committee will add between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 to the bill which will emerge from conference carrying about $25,000,000.

Representative James Francis Burke who introduced the bill which insures a new postoffice for Pittsburgh is well pleased with the sum allowed. His bill called for an appropriation of $3,000,000 for a site and building, but he is satisfied to get $1,000,000 now for a site.

"We are very well pleased with the sum allotted to us," said Mr. Burke. "It will provide a very suitable site. I have no doubt we can find a location satisfactory to the citizens of Pittsburgh which can be purchased within the sum stated. As soon as congress adjourns I propose to get the treasury department to proceed at once to secure the site. Property is advancing in value every year in Pittsburgh and I want to see the site selected and the title vested in the government. That done, we will go after an appropriation for the building."

Mr. Burke in getting this appropriation for Pittsburgh accomplished something remarkable for a new member. This is his first term, and first termers are usually to be congratulated if they get anything in the way of public improvements for their districts. But Mr. Burke modestly disclaims all the honor for this appropriation. He willingly concedes to Mr. Daizell and Dr. Barchfeld, his colleagues, a fair share of the glory, since they have worked hard and effectively to get the appropriation.

Senator Penrose today introduced the following amendments to the public building bill. To increase the cost of site and building at Johnstown from $110,000 to $150,000; for a site at Columbia, $20,000; to increase the appropriation for land and extension at Lancaster from $75,000 to $125,000; for improvements to building at Pottsville, $25,000. Increase for building at York from $75,000 to $250,000; increase in cost of site at Washington, $15,000; increase in cost of site at Shamokin from $10,000 to $25,000.

CONGRESS TO STAY UNTIL ITS WORK IS FINISHED

No Adjournment Until Final Action Is Taken on Important Matters Pending.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO GAZETTE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Congress will stay in session until its work is finished. This is the dictum of Speaker Cannon and his lieutenants, and is being emphasized at this time to counteract any impression that the pure food bill at least might go over until the next session. There is also trouble on the meat inspection bill and the "tie-up" on the railroad rate bill indicates delay. The immigration bill is also in conference as are also several of the appropriation bills.

All of these things must be worked out without any date of adjournment being set, according to the decision of the house leaders. When the work is done, an adjournment resolution will be forthcoming in short order.

While the situation today, spells delay until next week, the work on the floor is progressing. Members say there is no need of prolonging the session beyond Friday if the conferees make up their minds that the work must be done; that agreements which will meet all demands can be arranged on all matters before that time and that if the idea of prolonging the session for the purpose of killing certain bills is abandoned this week will see the end.

CODFISH FIGHT IN COURT.

Manufacturers Advise Retailers to Waive Hearings Before Alderman Groetzinger.

Nine merchants and grocers of Pittsburgh and surrounding towns, against whom informations have been made by Inspector E. D. Miller, charging them with selling adulterated codfish, waived hearings before Alderman Groetzinger and gave bail for court yesterday. This action was taken by the local dealers on the advice of the manufacturers, J. W. Beardsley's Sons Company of New York. The defendants were: Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, Fifth avenue; F. Diffenbach, 6262 Frankstown avenue; Charles L. Haas, 759 Rebecca street, Wilkinsburg; P. McSteen, Wylie avenue; W. H. Martin, 810 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg; John A. Renshaw & Sons, Ninth and Liberty streets; Sanders Brothers, 916 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg; J. S. Shaw, 11 Grant avenue, Duquesne; Andrew F. Wallis, manager Kauffmann's grocery department. Other cases are set for hearings today.

C. Kampas, C. B. Gipp, C. Perrent and Louis Snyder, all milk dealers of Allegheny, appeared before Alderman Groetzinger yesterday and paid their fines for selling adulterated milk.

PLAN GREAT FOURTH.

Allegheny Fund Soars Higher, and Kirschler Feels Certain Celebration Will Be Unprecedented.

Band music, free ice water and an old-fashioned good time is what Mayor Kirschler has planned for the afternoon of July 4 in West park, Allegheny. It is also probable, if the contributions are sufficient, a temporary theater will be erected, and local amateur talent will entertain the people. The subscriptions yesterday were very pleasing to the mayor, and he says that he is sure they will reach a point that will allow him to give Allegheny an unprecedented celebration.

The following is a list of those who contributed yesterday: Mike Sclack, $10; Strassburger & Joseph, $10; Wilson-Snyder Manufacturing Company, $25; James McClurg & Co., $20; Superior Hunting and Fishing club, $25; Morrison Brothers Company, $25; Allegheny Trust Company, $25; Simon Kirschler, $15; G. P. Schmidt & Co., $10; John S. Snyder, $10; Albert Guibert, $5; Germania Outing club, $5; John S. Eckerman, $5; previously acknowledged, $1,537; total, $1,727.

PRESIDENT HAS SELECTED MEN

Ready to Appoint New Members of Interstate Commerce Commission Under Rate Bill.

MEASURE BACK TO CONFEREES

SPECIAL TELEGRAM FROM L. W. STRAYER, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—President Roosevelt has practically decided on the three new members of the interstate commerce commission to be appointed when the railroad rate bill, which provides for a commission of seven members, becomes a law. They are: James S. Harlan of Illinois, E. B. Clark of Iowa, Franklin Lane of California. The present commissioners—Martin A. Knapp of New York, Charles A. Prouty of Vermont, Judson C. Clements of Georgia and Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri—will be reappointed. Knapp, Prouty, Harlan and Clark are Republicans and Cockrell, Lane and Clements Democrats.

Mr. Harlan is a son of Justice Harlan of the supreme court and was formerly attorney general for Porto Rico; Mr. Clark is the grand chief of the Order of Railway Conductors and was a member of the Gray commission that settled the anthracite coal strike three years ago. Mr. Lane is a college professor. He was named as a member of the present commission by the President several months ago, but his appointment was not confirmed by the senate, the generally accepted reason being that the Republican senators would not consent to the commission being composed of three Democrats and but two Republicans, as would have been the case had he been confirmed. If his nomination is not acceptable to the senate the place may go to Judge Samuel N. Cowan of Texas.

After two or three more speeches on the conference report on the railroad rate bill the senate today sent the bill back to conference, again designating Senators Tillman, Elkins and Culiom as conferees.

The house acceded to the request of the senate for another conference and reappointed Messrs. Hepburn, Sherman and Richardson conferees.

Passes and pipe lines were the two features that proved unacceptable to the senate. Senator Tillman, who had refused to sign the former report, said his refusal was because of the pipe line amendment, which had been so modified that it did not place them in the same category as railroads, although it made them common carriers. He was not satisfied with the pass amendment either, but he had agreed to swallow that, though he balked at the pipe line provision.

Senator Elkins spoke today in favor of the amendment striking out the pipe lines. He said that to forbid owners of pipe lines to carry their own oil would stop development and commended the example of his own state which, while regarding pipe lines as common carriers, permits them to carry their own oil. He declared that the effect would be to give the Standard an entire monopoly of the oil business and utterly ruin many independent operators. Mr. Elkins also defended the conference pass provision as being as satisfactory as could be procured.

Senator Long of Kansas agreed with Elkins. He said there had been no effort in Kansas to prohibit the pipe lines from transporting their own products, because it was known that the effect would be disastrous to the independent operators. All the protests he had received had come from people of that class who were in no wise connected with the Standard.

Senator Tillman declared the effect of the system of allowing the pipe line companies to buy and transport oil must be to inevitably establish a monopoly and is necessarily in the interest of the Standard company.

Clapp Agreed With Tillman.

Senator Clapp could not accept the theory that the proposed legislation would injure the independent companies nor did he believe the protests were uninfluenced by the Standard company. In support of this statement he read a letter from George F. Getty of Bartlesville, I. T., president of the Minnehoma Oil Company, in which the writer said he had been called into the local offices of the Standard company and asked to forward telegrams of protest to senators and congressmen, the Standard agent volunteering to pay the cost of transmission.

There is now a possibility that the pass amendment may be stricken out entirely and that the pipe line provision may be modified so that it will permit pipe line companies to transmit their own oil but place them under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission.

The most interesting incident in the senate today was a conflict over a motion by Senator La Follette to enter upon the consideration of the bill limiting to 16 hours the time railroad employes engaged in the moving of trains may be employed consecutively. There was great difficulty in securing a voting quorum, but the requisite number was ultimately obtained. No vote was taken but several senators spoke on the bill.

The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce authorized Chairman Hepburn to make a favorable report to the house today on the senate bill providing that the Panama canal shall be of the lock level type. Although the house provided in the sundry civil bill that none of the money appropriated for the canal in that measure should be spent for a sea level canal, which gave the sentiment of the house in favor of the lock canal, it was deemed best to adopt the senate bill which will be the continuing statute on the subject.

Charges Against a Federal Judge.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Charges of oppression in office, malfeasance and misfeasance against Charles F. Lange, district judge of the eastern district of the United States Court of Louisiana, have been received by Speaker Cannon from Francis C. Mahan of New Orleans and referred to the judiciary committee. The judge refused Mahan permission to file a suit in the federal court.

FRANCHISE FOR NEW TERMINAL

Corporations Committee Approves Bill of the Pittsburgh & Tube City Railroad.

HOLDS UP OTHER ORDINANCES

The ordinance granting a franchise to the Pittsburgh & Tube City Railroad Company for a terminal line from the eastern city line to Fourth avenue and Try street was approved yesterday by the corporations committee of councils after the committe had made an inspection of the location of the city terminus of the proposed line.

The committee boarded a large automobile at the city hall and made a trip to Fourth avenue and Try street along Bluff street to Soho and back to the city hall. After its return to the city hall the committee without any discussion voted to send the ordinance to councils with an affirmative recommendation.

The new road will enter a tunnel in the vicinity of Fourth avenue and Try street, the other end of which will be on the north side of Second avenue, near the South Tenth street bridge. The road will follow the bluff parallel with the Monongahela river for some distance, thence turning to the left and skirting Schenley park, entering another tunnel east of the park, emerging again on the Monongahela river bank and following the river closely to McKeesport.

Jones & Laughlin Again Favored.

The company offers a compensation of 20 cents on every car of freight started or delivered in the city and $50 per year on every passenger car operated.

The road will be constructed on the private property of the company and will cross all streets above or below grade. According to the statements of its promoters the road is being planned as a terminal for a number of trunk lines that are seeking an entrance into the city, including the Erie, the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, the Shawmut, and possibly connecting with the Wabash over the bridge of the Monongahela Connecting railway.

With the exception of the railroad ordinance and an ordinance granting Jones & Laughlin the privilege of laying a switch in South Twenty-first street, the committee held up all ordinances referred to it by councils and the latest one met with no opposition although the ordinance provides no compensation to the city.

Other Ordinances Held Up.

An ordinance granting the Oliver Iron and Steel Company the privilege of constructing a switch in South Thirteenth street, from near Gorman alley to the Pittsburgh & Whitehall railroad, was referred to a sub-committee of three on motion of D. K. Barton. To the same committee was referred an ordinance granting the same company the right to construct a bridge over South Thirteenth street connecting the two plants of the company. It was explained to the committee that this bridge was to be 16 feet clear above the level of the street and would not interfere with traffic in any manner. The company offers to pay the city the tax fixed by general ordinance.

The committee also held up the ordinance granting Frank L. and William F. Wettengel, as the East Liberty Electric Company, a franchise to lay conduits for a line to supply electric heat, light and power in the Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-first wards. C. D. Tilbury and W. H. Melaney, the representatives from the Nineteenth ward, spoke in favor of the ordinance, stating that the franchise was intended to give the Wettengels a chance to do business in the East End and that they had been interfered with by the Allegheny County Light Company.

Sent to Sub-Committee.

Dr. Walters moved that the compensation of 5 per cent of the net receipts be stricken from the ordinance and 2½ per cent of the gross receipts substituted in lieu thereof. Before the motion was put Charles Stewart raised the point that the company had not been incorporated.

William Brand opposed the ordinance because it contained no clause that the company would supply light to the city at any fixed maximum sum. A representative of the company said the plant was not large enough to supply the city but the company would be glad to do so if it were able. Upon the motion of L. H. Frederick the ordinance was referred to a sub-committee of three members.

NOTE HAS NO VALUE.

Peculiar Case of Alleged Juggling Involves Two Scott Township Men.

Silas Tomlinson of Scott township was held for court in $300 bail yesterday by Alderman McMasters on a charge of false pretense, preferred by Parker W. Alger, also of Scott township.

It is alleged that Tomlinson obtained a judgment note of $300 held against him by Kate V. Alger under the pretense that he would sign another note for $550, which he did, but in the meantime he is alleged to have sold the real estate which was security for the note, so that the second note was worthless.

Bergman Case Is Continued.

The case of J. F. Bergman of Johnstown, who was arrested at the Nixon theater last Friday, came up before Alderman Alpern yesterday. The prosecutor is Th mas Blackhall of 913 Union avenue, Allegheny. Bergman is accused of stealing clothes. The case was continued until next Wednesday and Bergman was again committed to jail in default of $500 bail.

IN South Highland avenue last evening was celebrated the marriage of Miss Carolyn E. Vandersaal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Vandersaal, to Frank Vincent Eaton. The wedding was simple and pretty and the home was decorated with only ferns and touches here and there of white roses. However, such quantities there were of the ferns and so effectively were they arranged that those present will long recall the occasion as the "fern wedding." The bridal party stood in the tower window of the drawing-room beneath a canopy of the foliage. Mr. Vandersaal gave his daughter away, the ceremony being solemnized at 8 o'clock by the Rev. J. B. Fisk of the Perrysville Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny, before the two families and a few intimate friends. The bride, who was unveiled, carried white roses. Her gown of white chiffon cloth was fashioned over a princess slip of silk and was trimmed in duchesse lace with rose point motifs. A necklace and bracelet of pearls were worn. Miss Gertrude Ramsey of Tyrone, the maid of honor and bride's only attendant, was in white mousseline over pale green and carried a shower of farleyance ferns. Clark Hughes Eaton served as his brother's best man and the ushers were Ralph Sill and Chester L. Kerr. The wedding music was furnished by the Mendelssohn trio. At the reception which followed the young couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Vandersaal, who wore a gown of black lace, and Mr. Eaton's mother, Mrs. Morris Eaton of Titusville, who wore pearl gray silk. Mr. Eaton, the bridegroom's father, was also present, together with Miss Eaton and Miss McCrea of Titusville, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Weidler of Oil City and Miss McCloskey and Miss Sarah McCloskey of Tyrone. Covers were laid for 16 at the bridal table, which was set up in a second floor apartment for the party and immediate relatives. At the conclusion of their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Eaton will live at Margaretta and Euclid avenues, where they will receive their friends after October 1.

Executive Board Meets.

A meeting of the executive board of the Allegheny County Equal Rights association was held last evening in the home of the secretary, Mrs. Emily Scott, in Thomas boulevard, East End.

The Revival of Brown.

The interesting novelty of the summer is the touch of brown on every hat and nearly every costume. No matter what the color of your hat, brown tulle is massed in the back and at the sides.

A great number of straw hats are trimmed in brown velvet ribbon—no matter what the color of the skirt and coat.

Brown belts are worn with all sorts of gowns, especially white duck skirts and white linen blouses. These belts are usually suede with a broad gilt buckle in front.

The shoe of the summer is brown—either glazed kid, Russian leather or suede.

To be fashionable you must possess at least one pair of brown shoes, tan hosiery, an assortment of brown veils, a brown hat and a brown leather belt.

To wear these accessories with a white suit is considered far more chic than to use them en costume with brown.

Brown veils are worn on every hat and are considered the most fashionable touch that any hat can have. Plain net without figure is good, and the large dots nearly three inches apart are also favored. Fasten your veil with three bar pins, one in the front, one to secure the veil to the hat in the back and the third to hold the ends together over the hair and prevent the wind-swept coiffure favored now only on the links.

The Hours of Sleep.

The amount of sleep required can be determined better by effect than by the number of hours consumed. It differs greatly with the age and condition of health. Few fallacies are more dangerous than that which is often adopted by busy people when they assume that the duration of sleep is largely a matter of convenience. The harmfulness of deficient sleep may not reveal itself until the age of decline is reached, but it will surely hasten decline. A weakened heart, contracted blood vessels, feeble digestion and damaged kidneys are the most common results in the system starved for sleep.

You need at least seven or eight hours' sleep. When you go to bed forget all the cares and worries of the day. Learn to use up odd moments in sleep. Don't hesitate to sleep on the cars. Get accustomed to sleep in all sorts of noises. The workaday world cannot be quiet every time you need rest.

Baked Bean Salad.

Peel and slice very fine four large or eight small onions. Pour cold water over them and press hard with the hand to remove the strong acrid taste. Drain well. Place in the salad bowl a pint and a half cold baked or boiled beans, add the onions, a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, two tablespoonfuls salad oil, a teaspoonful white sugar and a small cup vinegar. Toss lightly, then mound on lettuce leaves with a garnish of olives and sliced hard-boiled eggs. This is delightfully appetizing, for either picnic or supper table.

Reflections.

The only worth while kind of aspiration is the one that gets up a perspiration.

The woman who will not waste her love oftentimes wastes her life.

Toleration is often a synonym for sloth.

The two-faced rarely have more than half an outlook.

They seek in vain for power who fear all pain.

Domestic Emergencies.

Emergencies which arise in a household when medical attendance cannot be immediately secured may be treated after the following formulas. Often times a knowledge of what to do quick saves much suffering and an occasional doctor's bill. If the patient does not yield to the treatment within a half hour lose no time in having the advice of a physician.

Colic or cholera morbus—Apply heat in form of hot water bags or bottles, hot plates and mustard plaster over the seat of pain. Hot baths are sometimes useful.

Dysentery—For a simple diarrhoea ginger tea, peppermint or other warm drink will usually bring relief. A tablespoonful of sweet oil for an adult a teaspoonful for a child will relieve irritation. For dysentery which follows diarrhoea rest in bed, hot compresses or mustard plasters applied to stomach and soles of feet will give relief.

Vomiting—Patient should always lie down. Give large amounts of hot water as hot as can be taken or small bits of ice held in the mouth or swallowed, or a lump of ice held against the pit of the stomach will sometimes give relief. When other means fail apply a mustard plaster to the pit of the stomach.

Hiccough—In severe cases apply mustard plaster over the pit of the stomach. Hot vinegar, brandy or whisky applied in the same manner will sometimes bring relief. In simple cases holding the breath for one or two minutes will effect a cure. Sipping water gently, carefully swallowing each moiety, will sometimes assist in excluding the air from the lungs until the diaphragm quiets.

Cramps—Bathe the part in hot water as hot as can be borne. Apply mustard plasters to the part affected and to the extremeties.

Time to Fill Your Rose Jar.

If you wish to make for your rose jars a potpourri that will last for years, now is the time to commence gathering your materials.

Select your rose petals in the morning, let them stand in a cool place for two or three hours to dry. Toss them lightly from time to time and when dry put them in a large covered dish in layers, sprinkling each layer freely with salt. Add to this stock through the rose season until you feel you have sufficient. Shake up or stir every morning and let the mass stand ten days after the last rose petals have been added.

Transfer to a glass fruit jar in which you have placed two ounces of whole allspice, crushed; two ounces stick cinnamon, broken coarsely. Let stand six weeks closely covered, when it is ready for the permanent jar. Add now one ounce powdered orris root—Florentine; two ounces lavender flowers and a small quantity of any other sweet scented dried leaves. Mix all together and put in the rose jar in alternate layers with the rose stock and a few drops of oil of rose. Pour over the whole a quarter pint of good cologne.

Deviled Eggs.

Boil a half dozen eggs 20 minutes, drop into cold water for five minutes, then carefully remove the shells. Cut in halves with a sharp knife and with the point gently remove the yolks, dropping them into a bowl. Mash and mix them with salt and pepper, a tablespoonful of olive oil (or if you have it, mayonnaise), a teaspoonful of vinegar or made mustard and a little chopped pickle or parsley. There are no hard fast rules in its seasoning. Mix into soft paste, refill cavities in the eggs, put the two halves of egg together, skewed with wooden toothpicks, and roll each one separately in oiled paper. These are tasty to add to the school lunch box or car lunch.

SILKS FOR SUMMER

The silks which will enjoy the most popularity this summer are soft and supple. The peking more than any others lend themselves to exquisite color combinations. Two gowns among recent importations were made of this fabric. The first one of taffeta-pekin with very narrow stripes, one white, the other gray slightly flecked with black. Seen from a distance, the effect was that of gray, very soft to the eye. The design of this frock was a modified princess with a small bolero, simply gathered and decorated with a flounce of the same material cut out in rounded points, outlined by gray braid. The flounces were headed by bias folds of the voile, stitched and cut out over white Mnon veiling, which appeared between each fold in tiny bands all of the same width. The striped trimming thus obtained was most original. The decoration at the bottom of the skirt was of the same, in alternation with pinked flounces and the braid. Pretty buttons enlivened the front of the bolero. They were covered with taffeta and striped with a very fine cord.

The other gown exhibited was a pekin foulard and it was inlaid with blue taffeta in rounded points of a most graceful oval. A further embellishment was a combination of Irish lace, the motifs of which are embroidered over in a soft neutral tint of silk, which recalled vaguely the tinting of the dress fabric.

THE GAZETTE TIMES FASHION

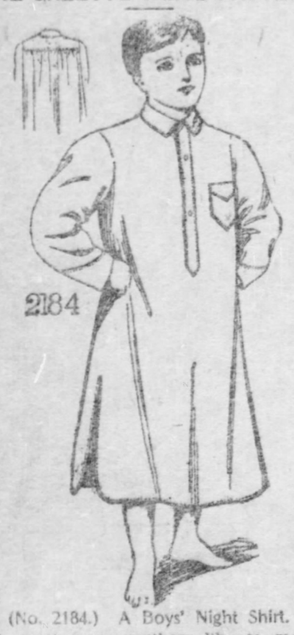
Quaint Hats, but Pretty.

The first model is a Yedda straw trimmed with half-blown rosebuds and a handsome bird of paradise plume. It is designed to meet the requirements of smart afternoon wear, and no one will venture to say that it does not fulfill expectations.

The second model, a mushroom sailor, is in cream white crinoline, having the high crown draped with folds of dark green satin ribbon, entwined with a wreath of tiny pink rosebuds. At the back, a little to the left, the satin is finished in a broad bow. Hats of the flop variety are the acme of smartness if one can wear them becomingly, and the milliners are showing a number of very clever effects.

Many of the fashionable hats are trimmed with flowers and ribbons above the brim, with feathers low, or yards and yards of mailines, confined in narrow ruchings, that take the place of feathers. Black hats are especially chic trimmed in this way and among the latest models are many in crinoline, puckered up in various quaint ways and trimmed with handfuls of flowers and feathers. Coque plumes find an accepted place among the season's millinery, especially as a trimming for the Tuscan straws, as they can be dyed so advantageously in the Tuscan shades.

THE GAZETTE TIMES PATTERN



(No. 2184.) A Boys' Night Shirt.

A great many mothers like to make their boys' night shirts, as they find that they wear longer and give better satisfaction in every way than the store-made ones. A night shirt is a very simple garment, having but few seams and no ruffles or trimming as a woman's gown has. An excellent design for a night shirt is pictured, for which the pattern may be had in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. The medium size calls for 3 yards of 36-inch goods.

POINTS IN THE FASHION

The smart two-piece costumes consisting of circular skirt and fanciful jacket or bodice is worn this spring with a sheer blouse that has not even a suggestion of its former pouched front. Veilings, eolennes, chiffon broadcloth and an almost infinite variety of soft silks are the accepted materials for early summer wear. For evening use with silk frocks whimsical little cloth shoulder wraps are shown in a variety of odd shapes.

Jewelled buttons and ornaments with an oriental flavor are much in evidence. Many of the short sleeves in thin dresses are finished with frills coming from under bands of ribbon adorned with handsome gold buckles. Ribbon girdles, stocks and ribbon knots are fastened in the same manner, the buckles showing filigree effects or again settings to harmonize in color with the ribbons they accompany.

The costume en suite is in such favor that it is quite usual to see pumps of the same material as the dress to which they belong. A parasol to correspond with the costume is another fad at present, though in this particular department the lingerie craze is insistent. Sunshades many of which are so sheer that they offer no shade, match the frocks in texture, color and decoration. With transparent linen and swiss robes the parasol is scarcely more than a web stretched over a wire frame and elaborated with embroidery or lace motifs. Pompadour silk covers some of the smartest carriage sunshades and a small fortune may be squandered on tips and handles to harmonize with various gowns. The tips are often of ivory or costly metal and may be set with gold, silver or tiny gems.

Echoes of the biennial and schemes for the Susan B. Anthony memorial interested those who attended the picnic of the Woman's club of Pittsburgh yesterday. The club women were the guests of Mrs. Vitellius Matthews at her home in Thornburg. Notwithstanding the delays in her return from the Yellowstone park Mrs. Matthews arrived home on Saturday and welcomed her guests yesterday morning. There was no attempt at formality, no program was arranged for the day, but after luncheon, which was served on the piazzas of Mrs. Matthews' home, both Mrs. Matthews and Miss Cara Reese, the latter being the delegate of the club to the biennial in St. Paul, gave glowing reports of the meeting of the General Federation of Women's clubs. The accounts given yesterday were not the formal reports which will be presented later, but consisted of the telling of interesting incidents connected with the federation meeting, the journey to St. Paul and the return, and some mention of the women who gathered there from all parts of the country. Mrs. Matthews supplemented Miss Reese's story and also told of her later trip to the Yellowstone park in company with 100 club women. Miss Mathilda Orr Hays told of the project to erect in Washington, D. C., a memorial statue of Miss Susan B. Anthony, as a companion statue to that of Miss Frances Willard and the club women enthusiastically indorsed it.

First Contingent at Fresh Air Home.

The first contingent of children from the city was received yesterday in the Fresh Air Home in Sewickley. Sixty little girls and boys, to whom country life was an unknown thing, were taken out in the first party and at intervals throughout the summer other parties of children will be sent out to take their places.

A garden party for the benefit of the Sewickley Fresh Air Home will be given tomorrow at Lingamore, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, in Quaker Valley. Elaborate preparations are under way for the affair. A dancing pavilion, 80 by 100 feet, has been constructed on the lawn which will be brilliantly lighted with electricity and with hundreds of Japanese lanterns hung among the trees. Gaily colored booths will also contribute to a very attractive entertainment.

Planning Lawn Fete for Memorial Fund.

The Allegheny City Equal Rights club is arranging to give a lawn fete in a few weeks for the benefit of the Susan B. Anthony Memorial fund. The date and place have not yet been decided upon, only the initial arrangements having been made. The proceeds will be devoted to the fund which is being raised to carry on the movement for the erection of a statue to Miss Anthony in Washington, D. C., which originated with the Allegheny City Equal Rights club, whose president Miss Mathilda Orr Hays, stands sponsor for the idea which was launched at the Anthony memorial meeting held several months ago in the Central Young Women's Christian Association building.

Send Poor Children to the Country.

A lawn fete will be given on the Grace church lawn, Dilbridge and Bayard streets, the Rev. John H. Prugh, D. D., pastor, on Friday evening for the benefit of the fresh air fund. The affair is under the direction of six little girls, Laura and Carrie Preese, Elizabeth Ash, Louise McMillen, Evelyn Jones and Jennie Cross Prugh. With the proceeds they propose to send into the country for a few days as many poor little city children as possible.

GREAT FINISH BY THE PIRATE CREW

Beat the Cincinnati Reds in the Last Three Innings of a Hot Game.

NOT A SINGLE ERROR IS MADE

CINCINNATI, June 26.—Coming from behind in true stake horse fashion, the Pittsburgh Pirates got up in the last jump and won today's game from Hanlon's Red Legs by a score of 6 to 4. The finish was enough to arouse a dead man to interest, and had the game been played to a crowd of Pittsburgh fans they would have certainly made the "welkin ring." As it was, it plunged 1,500 loyal Red rooters into consternation and deep melancholy, and little did the Pirates care for the feeling of the fans. They started a batting rally in the seventh inning, and it did not end until the ninth, and then perhaps it would have continued, but they had enough runs to win and the rules provide for only nine innings.

Manager Clarke selected Schoolmaster Sam Leever to do the twirling, and had he continued throughout several more innings there are great chances that an entirely different story would have had to be told, but Clarke was there with his noodle and, as Sam displayed signs of becoming an aeronaut, he was jerked out after the first inning and Mike Lynch was substituted.

Mike was there with the goods, and in the eight innings that followed only two hits were made off him. One of these should have been turned into an easy out with favorable conditions, while only one was what might be termed a clean hit. A triple had to be recorded because Clarke, Wagner and Beaumont played the Alphone-Gaston act, while a double was also put down in the score book because the sun got into Ganley's eyes after he was camped under the ball.

The Reds' runs were scored on bases on balls, and the two fluke hits that came on Lynch added another run that was not really earned.

This is how it happened: At first the Reds took the lead. Huggins and Seymour walked and Kelley and Barry died easily. Then Delehanty cracked a double to left and Huggins and Seymour scored. Odwell singled and Delehanty scored. Corcoran died easily.

They added one more to the total in the third after Lynch had relieved Leever. Seymour died easily and Kelley tripled. Barry died easily, but Delehanty again doubled, thanks to the sun, and Kelley scored.

Then nothing happened until the rally. This came in the seventh. Nealon singled and Leach singled. Ritchey died easily, but Peitz went out at first plate, Nealon scored. Lynch got a life on Delehanty's error and Leach scored. Beaumont died on a fly to Kelley.

In the eighth Ganley started with a single and Clarke Morris when Clarke lined a home run to right field tying the score. Wagner flied out and Nealon again singled, but Leach and Ritchey both died.

With a tie score, Phelps batted for Peitz in the ninth and singled. Lynch sacrificed, and Beaumont singled, Phelps scoring. Odwell threw wild to the plate and Beaumont took third on it. Ganley sent a long fly to Odwell and Beaumont scored. Clarke flied out to Lobert who had taken Seymour's place, because Cy kicked very strenuously on a called strike. Score:

Brooklyn Again Defeats Boston.

BOSTON, June 26.—Four hits, including a three-bagger, with two outs, gave the Brooklyns four runs in the first inning today, giving them a victory over Boston 4 to 1. The game was interrupted by a small riot, which occurred when the police made two arrests for alleged gambling in the first base bleachers. The crowd got out upon the field and the players left the game to watch the exertions of the police, who had to beat off many would-be rescuers of the prisoners on the way to the gates. This action on the part of the police is the result of a crusade against betting at the local baseball games. Score:

GLADDEN CHURCH LIKELY TO SPLIT

Troubles of the United Presbyterian Congregation Are Aired at Presbytery.

WANT THE PASTOR TO GET OUT

Monongahela presbytery of the United Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon in session in the Homewood church appointed a commission of five members to investigate the troubles which have set at odds the pastor and session of the Gladden church. Several hours were spent by a committee in endeavoring to solve the difficulties, and finally the committee reported itself unable to clear the atmosphere and recommend the appointment of a commission. After considerable debate the committee was turned into a commission. The commission consists of the Rev. W. J. Reid, the Rev. Dr. M. M. Patterson, the Rev. Albert Flick, G. L. Rodgers and H. W. McKee.

The Rev. Dr. J. T. Cro.y, pastor of the Third church, said he did not feel like turning over such an important matter to any five men on a commission without learning more of the difficulties. The Rev. D. M. Cleland, the pastor, said he would be glad to have a commission come to the church. At that point Mr. Reid arose and gave the members an idea of the difficulties. After speaking well of the industrial work conducted at Traveskyn by Mr. Cleland in addition to his pastoral work at the Gladden church, Mr. Reid said:

Conditions in Gladden Church.

Every member of the session wants a change. Are we going to grant the request of the session and put the pastor aside? There is trouble in the church, and there will be a division in the congregation if we take the pastor away or let him stay. There will be trouble, no matter what we do. The whole trouble rests on one man. There are mission Sabbath schools near Gladden where many foreigners worship. They want to join Gladden church, but that church is too far for them to travel for the services. The session of Gladden church has refused to go out to the missions and receive them there. Now, can we make the session go there if it doesn't want to go? It seems to me the best thing is to go there as a presbytery.

Mr. Wallace, an elder of the Gladden congregation, said he had never refused to go to the missions, but others had and Mr. Cleland agreed with him. Upon reading a minute of the last meeting of presbytery it developed that the mission people at Traveskyn were to be organized and hold their membership at the Gladden church. Members of the Gladden church session are said to be opposed to the work of education carried on among the foreigners of Traveskyn.

The Rev. Dr. J. M. Wallace, pastor of the Eighth church, Pittsburgh, reported as chairman of the commission straightening out the affairs of the Eleventh church. Dr. Wallace said he could only report progress. He is endeavoring to conciliate members of the session over a dispute concerning the handling of building funds.

Received Into Presbytery.

The Rev. Dr. J. D. Irons of Oakmont, professor in Xenia Theological seminary for many years, was received into presbytery. He has been in poor health for a couple of years.

The Rev. R. M. Blackwood, pastor of the Coraopolis church, presented his resignation to take effect July 29. He gave ill health as his reason and will move away from the vicinity. The resignation was accepted and the Rev. Edwin McClintock was appointed to moderate a call to the church.

The report of the Rev. Dr. J. D. Sands, financial agent, and the chairman of the finance committee, the Rev. S. W. McKelvey, revealed the fact that congregations have already paid about 14 per cent of the quota of $56,000 for the year.

The Rev. Dr. R. M. Russell, president-elect of Westminster college and chairman of the general assembly's semi-centennial committee, addressed presbytery and expressed the desire to raise the $2,000,000 semi-centennial offering before the meeting of the general assembly next year. Several ministers spoke and a committee on the fund recommended that the congregations get active in raising the money. The Rev. E. N. Orr received a certificate to the presbytery of Illinois and the Rev. J. O. McCown a certificate to Butler presbytery.

FIVE CLASSES MEET.

Interesting Sessions of Pittsburgh School of Methods Are Held.

Five classes were in session at one time yesterday at the second day's sessions of the Pittsburgh School of Methods in the East Liberty Presbyterian church, Penn and Highland avenues. More than 250 students have matriculated during the last two days and many visitors were present last night from all parts of the country.

The Bible study work of the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Erdman is attracting attention and the people were especially pleased last evening with the addresses of the Rev. Dr. H. M. Hamill and Miss Baldwin.

CEMETERY CORPORATORS HONOR DEAD PHYSICIAN

Corporators of the Allegheny cemetery have placed a handsome tablet in the office of the gate entrance building, Penn avenue, to the memory of James Ramsay Speer, M. D., who originated the idea in Pittsburgh for the establishing of a suburban cemetery. It was through his interest and enthusiasm that the original board of directors of the cemetery took the steps which established the fine burying ground which is the fourth oldest in the country. The older cemeteries are Mt. Auburn, Boston; Laurel Hill, Philadelphia, and Greenwood, Brooklyn. Allegheny cemetery was established in 1844. The tablet has been placed above the mantel in the office. At the annual meeting of the corporators S. G. McCandless, the president, spoke in appreciation of the good done through the enthusiasm of Dr. Speer.

DICK DECLARES FOR HARRIS.

Ohio Senator Predicts Nomination of Present Governor to Succeed Himself.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—(Special.)—Senator Charles Dick today issued a statement predicting the nomination of Gov. Harris to head the Republican ticket of Ohio in 1907.

This indorsement of the governor to succeed himself was brought about by talk of Harry Daugherty, Wade H. Ellis and Warren G. Harding in connection with the nomination. They are not in harmony with the organization, and Senator Dick's statement is, in effect, a notice to them that they need not look to the organization for support for the office.

BEARS HAMMER PRICES TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Market Later Recovered on the Increase in Anaconda's Dividend—Call Loans Easy—Sharp Decline in Pittsburgh Coal.

By JOHN O. BAGLIN, Financial Editor.

In the New York stock market yesterday the bears made a sharp drive against prices which resulted in some stocks selling down to the lowest level of the year. A partial recovery set in before the end of the first hour, based upon shorts covering. This was followed by another period of depression, but the market finally recovered and in some instances closed higher than on Monday. The sales foot up 1,171,500 shares.

One of the weakest stocks in the early dealings was Anaconda Copper, which broke from 283½ to 278. In the early part of the afternoon the directors met and declared a quarterly dividend of $1.87½ a share, and increase of 25 cents a share, or 1 per cent, over the dividend paid in April. Inasmuch as the April dividend was an increase of 1 per cent over that paid in January the action of the directors yesterday was unexpected. It took the bears by surprise and there was a scramble to cover shorts. The movement carried the price up to 345, the highest of the day, at which the market closed, being a net gain of 10¾ per cent. Anaconda is a clique stock, owned largely by the Amalgamated Company, and inasmuch as the floating supply is not large, the manipulators can do with it much as they please. But the increased dividend, being a benefit to Amalgamated, and of course made with the consent of the latter's officials, the shorts in Amalgamated Copper also became alarmed. The stock had opened at 98¾ and sold down to 96⅝, but on covering of shorts rallied to 99⅝ and closed at 99½, a net advance of 1¾ per cent.

United States Steel stocks were under heavy pressure during the early dealings and the common declined to 35¾, the lowest since last November, when the money stringency was having its effect upon the market. The preferred declined to 102, the previous low price of the year. Both stocks, however, shared in the recovery and the common closed the same as on Monday, while the preferred closed at an advance of one-fourth per cent. The minor iron and steel stocks were all weak during the early part of the session, but in most instances recovered their losses and closed steady.

The weakest of the railroad list at the opening was St. Paul. The selling was by some of the large commission houses in the street and gave the impression that the public was liquidating. The price broke 3 per cent, to 174, but the close at 176 represented a net loss for the day of five-eighths. Atchison held relatively better than the other grangers and fluctuated within a range of 1 per cent, finally closing ¼ per cent higher than on Monday. A factor of strength was the statement of the road for May, showing an increase of 17 per cent in gross earnings, and an increase of 35 per cent in net. Union Pacific declined from 146½ to 144⅝, but closed unchanged for the day at 146. Southern Pacific was one of the strongest of the railroads and closed with a net gain of 1¼ per cent on a revival of rumors that the directors would declare an initial dividend in August of 1½ to 2 per cent semi-annual. Missouri Pacific closed 1¾ higher on the improvement in gross earnings.

Pennsylvania made a new low record for the year by selling at 129, but it recovered all the loss and closed at a net gain of three-fourths per cent over the previous close. Reading broke to 126 and recovered to 128⅞, closing at 128¾. Erie broke to 49½, but recovered all the loss. With the exception of Northern Pacific, which closed one-fourth higher, the high-grade railroad stocks of its class closed either unchanged or slightly lower.

Call loan rates were again easy within a range of 2½ to 3 per cent, but time loans held firm. Grain markets were firmer and both wheat and corn closed higher.

The feature of the local stock market was the weakness in Pittsburgh Coal preferred, which on the sale of 400 shares broke to 50, the lowest price of the year, and a net loss for the day of 2⅞ per cent. The final bid was 50¼, but there was more stock for sale at 51. There were no transactions in the common stock, which was nominally quoted at 14 bid, 14½ asked. Crucible Steel common closed unchanged at 12, while the preferred was a fraction lower at 76¾. National Fire Proofing was dull and heavy, the common selling at 6½ and the preferred at 25¼. The Brewing stocks were steady within a narrow range of fluctuations. Pittsburgh Oil and Gas sold at 41, a decline of 1 per cent, but the other natural gas stocks were unchanged. Westinghouse Air Brake sold at 149, a decline of 1½. In the mining department 5,800 shares Cable Consolidated sold at the uniform price of 48c and closed steady. Tonopah Extension was in good demand at 5¾ to 5¾. 2,100 shares selling at those prices. Pittsburgh Consolidated declined to 27c, but recovered to 29c. Duquesne Traction 5s sold at 112¾, a decline of 1 per cent from the last previous sale. Consolidated Gas 5s sold at 107½, a decline of 2¼ per cent.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

New York banks were calling loans yesterday for the purpose of replenishing their reserves in preparation for the July payments, which are unusually heavy this year and are estimated as high as $125,000,000. The calling of loans had no perceptible effect in the call loan market, but rates for time loans continued strong at the higher level established Monday. Such heavy disbursements as are to occur with the turn of the month are expected usually to cause some preliminary investment demand for securities. One of the discouraging features of the present market is the entire absence of any such demand. The bond market continues rather to reflect the pressure of occasional liquidation, sometimes due to the expiration of syndicates and the distribution to members of unsold holdings. The market is deprived of the demand by life insurance companies owing to the new regulations for investment for the surplus of those institutions. Selling by fire insurance companies has been in evidence also ever since the San Francisco losses. This kind of selling was a marked influence in the London market yesterday, and selling for Paris account was also in evidence there. London is also apprehensive of money trouble in connection with the mining settlement now imminent. The weekly report of the Imperial Bank of Germany serves as explanation of the hardening of money rates there. These disturbed conditions in foreign markets serve as an obstacle to efforts to secure gold for import to New York, and there was not sufficient change in the foreign exchange rate yesterday to overcome the margin which divides the price of exchange from the level of profit from gold import.

The decline in Pittsburgh Coal preferred to 50, the lowest price of the year, was due to the narrowness of the market. For several days past the stock has been offering at 51¾, with no bid, and the execution of a market order of less than 500 shares broke the price to 50. At the close 50¼ was bid. There were no transactions in the common stock.

Manufacturers' Light and Heat was unchanged, 100 shares selling at 31¼. The dividend was not announced until after the close of the market.

West Penn Railways declined to 27¾ and later sold at 28. There were no sales of the preferred. A small lot of the bonds sold at 99¼.

Masten & Co. were the largest sellers of Tonopah Extension. Carothers & Co., Robinson Bros., Sproul & Co., Childs & Childs and Scully, Painter & Beech were buyers.

Directors of the Pittsburgh Valve Foundry and Construction Company declared a quarterly dividend of 1 per cent, payable August 1.

The Westinghouse Machine directors declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent, payable July 10 to stock of record July 2.

Consolidated Traction directors declared a semi-annual dividend of 1 per cent on the common stock, payable July 2.

La Belle Iron Works directors declared a quarterly dividend of 5 per cent, payable August 1. There had been some talk that the rate would be increased to a 10 per cent annual basis. A sale of the stock was reported yesterday at 130.

The Ohio Valley Bank of Allegheny has declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent, payable July 2 to stock of record June 30.

The Provident Trust Company of Allegheny has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent, payable July 2.

The Hazelwood Oil Company has declared a dividend of 1½ per cent, payable to stock of record June 30.

The Manufacturers Light and Heat directors declared the usual quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent, payable July 20 to stock of record June 20.

The regular semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent on United Traction preferred of Pittsburgh is payable July 20 to stock of record July 10.

The Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company has declared the usual quarterly dividend of 1 per cent, payable July 25 to stock of record July 15.

The directors of the Illinois Brick Company have decided to pass the quarterly dividend, owing to an industrial war in the business. The stock broke yesterday from 51¾ to 44.

In January the Anaconda paid a quarterly dividend of 87½ cents a share and in April $1 12½ a share. The dividend declared yesterday of $1 87½ is payable July 13 to stock of record July 7. If this latter rate is maintained, it would mean 22 per cent per annum on par, $25 a share, and would be equivalent to a shade less than 9 per cent on 245, the closing price of the stock yesterday. The company paid $4 a share in 1900, $3 25 in 1901, $1 in 1902 to 1904 both inclusive, and $2 in 1905. Yesterday's dividend is at the rate of $5 50 per annum.

San Francisco transferred $300,000 currency to New York yesterday, making $21,125,000 returned since May 4.

Chicago reports an increase in wheat speculation and yesterday's market was active, closing higher. The price today is about 7c below the market for the corresponding date a year ago.

The underwriting world is quiescent. The Pennsylvania's Paris loan is the text for all treatises issued by the bond houses during the week. Everybody seemed to come to the conclusion that it meant a general loosening of the French purse strings and a flood of Parisian gold pouring into American corporation coffers. This, of course, is mostly nonsense. Any American bonds that are sold in Paris will have to be good enough to recommend themselves to the French bankers, whose reputation is their one priceless possession. It is hardly necessary to say that this Pennsylvania episode does not constitute even the flimsiest kind of a basis for the belief that the French public is going to become an object of American financial exploitation along the financial lines that became so popular here and in Europe during the so-called merger period. There will be a market in France for the best class of American bonds. There has always been more or less of a market there for short-term notes. It will still remain the peculiar prerogative of Germany, Holland and England to underwrite the financial ventures of a Stillwell, a Stickney, and other pioneers of that class, and to refinance the necessities that ultimately arise out of these financial ventures. St. Paul might easily raise $50,000,000 through Frederick Vanderbilt on 4½ bonds, but it may be doubted whether the Missouri Pacific, in the instance, could do the same thing."—Wall Street Journal.

There are rumors of dissension among the directors of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company over the recent declaration of the dividend on the preferred stock at the rate of 5 per cent. Representatives of August Belmont & Co. refused to make any comment on the stories of trouble over the dividend, taking the position that they could not afford to deny this one time lest they find themselves under the necessity of denying every false market rumor that the bears produced, or else laying it stamped true by default.

In St. Paul no stock was disposed of on the first break yesterday between 175 and 174, the latter price following the former on sale of only 500 shares. This incident served as a warning to the bears that they were overextending themselves and a demand to cover shorts, which gained in volume during the progress of the day was the consequence.

The English, French and German markets all closed lower yesterday. British consols showed a loss of ¼ per cent. There are no legislative enactments pending nor investigations into corporate management progressing to affect the foreign markets. There seems to be world-wide apathy on the part of investors to buy and pay outright for securities.

RENTING AFFAIRS IN QUEER STATE

Landlords Will Neither Improve Buildings Nor Give Their Tenants Long Lease.

BELLEVUE FLATS ARE SOLD

A peculiar condition of affairs exists just now in downtown renting which is exasperating to agents and costly to property owners. Although the number of vacant store rooms in several of the principal streets is larger than usual at this season, and the inquiry from reliable business firms is fully up to the average, very few leases are being signed. One cause, above all others is assigned for this apparent anomaly—the property owners will not give a lease sufficiently long enough to justify the tenant in making extensive improvements neither will the landlord improve the buildings himself to make them modern business homes. As a result there are many downtown buildings standing vacant whose location is of the very best and for which tenants are ready if they could be assured of a modern structure. The most noticeable example of these tactics is to be seen in the tumble-down buildings composing the old "commission row" in Liberty avenue, between Sixth and Seventh streets. Renting agents could easily rent every one of these buildings if they were convenient, sanitary and attractive, but in their present state they are a drug on the market. There are plenty of would-be tenants, but these firms will not sign a lease for less than five years if they have to meet the cost of improving the buildings themselves, and they will not rent them for a shorter period unless the landlord makes the necessary changes. At least $5,000 would be required to put any one of them in shape for a good retail location, it is said. The same trouble can be found in other downtown streets where the present condition of buildings is enough to drive prospective tenants away. The shrewd man of business is not going to incur the expense and risk of changing his location and the additional outlay of from $5,000 to $20,000 for improvements on his new home unless he is assured that he will stay there from five to 20 years. The landlords' excuse for their stand in the matter is that a long lease is often a serious hindrance to the sale of a business property and that at the rate prices are going up they can afford to leave the buildings in their present state and wait for a buyer. Meanwhile the retail interests of Pittsburgh are suffering seriously, and the loss in income of none at all or many properties is a constant barrier to brokers in effecting their sale.

Big Sale for Bellevue.

A big sale for Bellevue is the disposal of the Oakmont apartment house through Keck & Hells for $20,000. The property belonged to Dr. L. B. Means and was bought by Lyman R. Jackson for an investment. It consists of a three-story brick building erected three years ago and standing on 40x165 feet on Rodgers avenue, between Forest and Orchard avenues. There are six apartments of five rooms and bath each, the total rental from which is $200 a month.

The property of Mrs. George W. Theis at 2021 Fifth avenue has been sold to a local investor for $20,000, or about $830 a front foot. The lot is 24x125 feet, running back to Wyandotte street, and is improved with a large brick house.

The sale is reported of the J. Stalleman property at 1806 Penn avenue for $17,000, or $850 a foot, this being the first sale in that locality for several weeks. A three-story brick store and dwelling stand on the lot, which measures 20x100 feet and runs back to Spring alley.

Preacher Sells His Farm.

The Land Trust Company by its agent, W. E. Ruth, has sold for the Rev. George S. Beggs a farm of 105 acres at Collier station, on the Panhandle railroad, for $20,000, the buyer being William McCombs. The property is just over the West Virginia line and 16 miles from Burgettstown. The farm is stocked with thoroughbred Guernsey cattle, which were included in the purchase, as were also two teams of fine horses and all the farming implements.

Through the office of R. A. Saxton, R. W. Buxton has sold his farm of 125 acres three miles east of Valencia for $20,000. It is just 24 miles from Pittsburgh on the Pittsburgh & Western railroad, and has a long frontage on the Butler plank road. The buyer, whose name is withheld, takes the property with a view to the rapid enhancement which is expected to follow the traction developments in that region.

John S. Kes takes credit for the sale of the Holmes lots at Butler and Fifty-fifth streets, which were sold Monday for $10,000 to Homer Wright for a manufacturing site. A plant will be erected at once for the use of Collins & Wright, metal spinners.

New Building in First Avenue.

The Hartley-Rose Belting Company will have plans drawn at once for a six-story brick and steel warehouse to be erected on the Homer Wright lot at First avenue and Cherry alley which it has just secured. The purchase was negotiated by Edward Martin of Coyle Bros., and amounted to $72,500. The building will cover the entire lot, 40x75 feet, and will cost at least $60,000.

Bids will be taken soon by Architect James T. Steen on the eight-story building which the Scientific Materials Company will erect in Forbes street, near Boyd street.

The Nicola Building Company has the contract for the store building of James K. Bennett at 810 Penn avenue.

Samuel Krauss has awarded to Henry Miller the contract for building a four-story brick warehouse at Linton and Overhill streets.

Architects Vrydaugh & Wolfe have plans for a $35,000 building for the Washington Park Natatorium Company.

Architect Thomas W. Boyd has plans for a brick church and parsonage to cost $15,000 for the Bethlehem Lutheran congregation at Clyde, Pa., to cost $15,000.

Plans are being drawn by Architect John T. Comes for a stone church for the St. Phelix Roman Catholic congregation of Freedom, Pa.

MARKET AGAIN FIRMER AS RESULT OF SUPPLY

Produce List Generally Stronger, but Potatoes and Raspberries Are Very Weak.

The market showed a firmer tone yesterday than for some days past. This was due to an optimistic feeling among traders. Produce was stronger, with the exception of potatoes and raspberries. The former went to the lowest point of the year and old potatoes dropped to 75 and 80 cents in the yards. New potatoes also suffered as a result and were quoted at $2 75 and $3. Other lines of produce were firmer and few changes were made.

Raspberries were in the limelight yesterday, and thousands of cases were bought by canners and preservers. Nine cars arrived in the city yesterday, and old produce men think this will be the largest shipment to Pittsburgh this season. In past seasons few larger shipments have been received. Black raspberries were quoted at $1 75 for choice fruit.

Georgia peaches began to arrive in large quantities yesterday, and the prospects are very bright for a large crop. The Georgia variety will have precedence this year because of the poor variety of California fruit which has arrived up to this time. The California fruit suffer with what is known as a black spot. Georgia peaches sold yesterday for $2 50 a crate.

Green apples are now on the market, but are very fine for the first receipts. They are worth $1 50 and $2 for bushel hampers.

The butter, egg and cheese market is stronger, and eggs continue firm at 18 and 19 cents for candled eggs. No change has been noted in the grocery list. On the whole, the market is firmer than for a few weeks past.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts.

Receipts bulletined yesterday were: Pennsylvania—19 hay, 20 oats, 5 corn, 2 feed and 3 straw. Baltimore & Ohio—5 hay, 2 oats, 2 corn and 2 straw. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie—2 hay and 1 oats.

Arrivals yesterday were larger again, and prices were not so stiff as for a few days past. No changes were made in the market list, but trading on the floor of the exchange was bearish to some extent. It is predicted by dealers that the weakness is only temporary.

REVIVAL OF OPERATIONS IN SEVERAL OLD DISTRICTS

While the developments in the lower southwest fields result in very few good producers, there is a slight indication of a revival in operations in some of the old districts. The new work startline is quite generally distributed throughout the old districts, where there has not been any wells drilled for several years. The best producers are still found in the Keener pool in Pleasants county, on Point Pleasants creek. There is enough work nearing completion within the defined area of the pool to prevent an immediate decline in the aggregate of the pool. Two companies, the Southern and the Pure Oil Company, have more than four-fifths of the entire production of the pool. The first named company's eight wells on the R. A. Workman farm are producing 815 barrels a day, and the Pure Oil Company's six on the W. P. Clark farm are holding up at better than 1,000 barrels a day. The Lincoln Oil Company's three on the M. L. Workman farm are producing 180 barrels, and the Trees Oil Company & Benedum's No. 3 on the T. G. Morris farm 120 barrels.

DRY IN THE SALT SAND—On Flat fork, in Spencer district, Roane county, and about one mile south of the development on West fork, Ellsworth, Davis & Co. have drilled their wildcat on the M. Starcher farm through the salt sand and found nothing in that formation.

TYLER COUNTY—In the Wick pool in Meade district, Tyler county, the Carter Oil Company has drilled No. 11 on the E. B. Long farm into the Big Injun pay, and the hole has filled up 1,200 feet with fluid. In the same district Browne, Proper & Campbell have drilled their No. 3 on the G. P. Myers farm into the Big Injun, and have a show for a light pumper. Near Ellenboro, Ritchie county, Frymire & Co. have a light pumper in the Berea grit at their test on the S. V. Sinell farm. SOUTHEASTERN OHIO—On the Ohio side, in the Woodsfield district, in Monroe county, a few good producers have just been drilled in. The Pure Oil Company has completed its No. 7 on the Jacob Kindleberger farm, and has a producer good for 125 barrels a day in the Berea grit. In the same district the Pure Oil Company has drilled its No. 3 on the Fred Schneider farm into the Big Lime, and has a show for a 30-barrel producer. No. 4 on the same farm has been drilled into the Big Lime and is a gasser. The Mars Oil and Gas Company has drilled its test on the James G. Rouse farm into the Berea formation and has a show for a 25-barrel producer.

WASHINGTON COUNTY—In the Mackshurg field, Washington county, C. H. Vaughn has drilled his test on the John Bethl farm through the 800-foot sand and has a five-barrel pumper. In the same district, Henry Rosser & Co. have completed No. 7 on the T. Marshall farm, and CHAPTER I.

In the Sage Brush Country.

When the train stopped at Battle Mountain a certain morning in May, 1881, there was only one passenger in sight. He presented a remarkable appearance, even in that place and at that time. The other passengers might be forgiven for putting their heads out of the window to look at him, nor was it strange that the station agent, rolling his quid into the other cheek, stood at gaze, as the newcomer stepped briskly towards him. Tall, slender, with the hand at the shoulders which betrays the student, the eager stoop of one who drinks thirstily of his books and long, intent on what he saw, alive to his fingertips, he came striding forward his large, dark eyes glowing in the pallor of so much of his face as showed above the silken black beard veiling the lower half. He was clothed in clerical black, all but his hat. That was Nevada's, the cowboy's, the miners, a soft, golden-brown sombrero, giving him a brigandish look which ill consorted with his large, gentle, melancholy eyes. He moved with impetuous energy, his long black coat-tails floating out behind, yet sedately, as one accustomed to be noticed and approved.

"Good-morning," he said cheerfully. "can you tell me where I can find a horse to take me to Galena?"

The station agent was not a man to hesitate, especially when he scented a trade. "You bet," he returned cordially. "Sound and kind, stands without hitchin', leads like a lamb," and he disappeared in the direction of a shed behind the station.

The stranger waited, waving his hand to three little girls bunched like flowers in one of the car windows. They waved themselves bodily to him and babbled inarticulate, importunate appeals, lost for lack of an interpreter, for, before their mother could intervene and translate, the agent returned, dragging after him a sorry-looking animal, ribbed like a sea-washed hulk, knock-kneed, spavined and blind in one eye.

"There!" he announced complacently; "that's the dog-gondest finest mar' in these parts. I'll sell her to ye for fifteen, and you'd have to pay ten for hire. If she's yourn you kin do as yer a minter with her. If ye hired her an' there was anythin' happened, there might be trouble."

"I'll take her," said the newcomer briefly, and slid his long, brown hand deep into his trousers pocket, bringing it up filled with coin. "Is that right?" he asked.

The agent ran his eye over the money. "Yep," he replied contentedly. "If you wanter give me five more I'd throw in the saddle."

Again the long, brown hand slid into the trousers pocket and fished up another gold piece.

"That fixes us," cried the agent delightedly. "I don't suppose ye know the way? Ye wanter hit the south trail between them two hills and wiggle along the foothills till ye strike the up trail. When ye git inter the canyon ye can't git out."

"Thank you," said the stranger, climbing awkwardly into the saddle and slinging his traveling satchel over the horn. The agent watched him and ejected a stream of tobacco juice with the accuracy and rapidity of a hose company playing on a fire. The little girls watched him and babbled more inarticulate appeals for attention. Their mother made no attempt to explain. She was standing staring over the children's heads. Everyone in the car stood and stared. The men, women and children who had rushed out of the one street of the little town at the approach of the train did the same.

The young man—he was young in spite of his beard and his solemn ways—bore their gaze with the utmost tranquility, shook the reins and spoke encouragingly to the horse. The animal stiffly responded. At the same moment the locomotive gave a shriek and started on its way, which lay parallel with the street. There was a flutter of handkerchiefs at the windows, the horseman lifted his hat; then the train went on, and Clement Vaughan, once itinerant preacher in Gainsborough, England, became an atom, a speck in the wide expanse of the Nevada plain, absolutely alone.

He turned in the saddle to look this way and that. Wide stretches of gray, dusty soil, with leprous blotches of alkali, he saw, patches of sage brush, no other growing thing, high mountains rimming the horizon. Over him burned the blue of a cloudless sky. Around him poured the limpid atmosphere. A curving line of willows showed the path of the Humboldt river. The one street of Battle Mountain stood out straight and clear. All else was barren plain, sage brush and alkali.

Towards the two little hills between which ran the road the stranger urged his horse; but the two little hills evermore retreated. They were like everything else in this strange, tantalizing, new country. At last he reached them and began to climb. Sounds met him, coming forward; the rattle of wheels, the clank of chains, the call of the driver, and between the walls of sage brush appeared the leaders of a string of mules. They shied at sight of him, and the entire twenty swerved from the road. The driver, seated on the off wheel-horse in front of the first canvas-topped wagon—there were two—pulled on the iron rod which went from the bit of one leader to the rein of the other, and commenced to swear. He cursed the leaders and he cursed all the other mules of the string, calling each by name; he cursed their ancestors and their descendants to the third and fourth generations, backwards and forwards, up and down, till he was out of breath, and then he briefly and succinctly cursed the man in his way, who, astonished at the picturesqueness of the profanity, listened as to something new, forgetting its significance. He watched the driver gee his train with a steady pull on the rod and haw it with two swift strong jerks. The last wheel of the second "schooner" creaked past him.

"Wonderful!" he ejaculated, "Wonderful!" and jogged along.

The road was a rough one, a mere path in the sage brush widened by use. When the ruts had become too deep others had been formed, to be abandoned in turn for the first when these had been filled with drifting sand or washed by heavy rains. For a mile or more the road traversed the hills, then descended into the Reese river valley, but continued to cling to the base of the mountains. All at once they entered the ravine. Rocks loomed on either side. Cottonwood trees began to appear and the thick, rank bunch-grass on which cattle fed. Part of a herd came tearing down the slope directly in his path, and drank eagerly of a small stream trickling over the stones into a natural basin. Huge, wild-eyed creatures they were, branded on the rump, or with cleft ears or dewlaps slit in strings to tell who owned them. They eyed the intruder suspiciously, swerved to one side as they passed him and went down the ravine with impulsive, aimless, shuffling gait.

A few miles farther the traveler came upon a deserted stamp-mill, as he deemed it, from the red dust of the crushed ore covering the roof and sides.

Higher up there was another, like the first, a rough wooden structure built into the hill. Then the road made a sudden turn and there, cut off from the world, on a shelf, a niche, in the heart of the mountain, stood a cluster of small houses, built alike, of rough boards, with square fronts, doors set thick with windows, and "stoops" to offset the slope of the canyon. One of them was larger than the rest, and on its stoop lounged a company of men; red-shirted miners, cowboys in blue or gray, with heavy top-boots, all smoking.

The newcomer alighted on the wrong side of the horse, a fact which did not escape the men on the stoop, and came towards them.

"Good-evening, gentlemen," he began with a boyish confidence. "Can you direct me to Frank Henley's—Why, there you are!" he called joyously, as a tall, fair man appeared in the doorway.

"Clement Vaughan!" cried the other, hurrying to meet him. "We didn't expect you for a month. I'd have met you. Who gave you that rack-o'-bones to ride? Martin Young, Will Dower, this is my friend Vaughan. Come in, come in. Mary will be delighted." Henley led the way into the house, shouting, "Mary, Clement's here!"

"How you've grown!" exclaimed Vaughan. "May, I'd never have known you! And can this be Lilian? Ah, Mary!" he kissed her with brotherly affection.

"Clement! I am so glad!" she cried, returning his embrace, then held him at arm's length and scrutinized him anxiously. "You look better than I expected. I thought from what you wrote you'd hardly be able to take the journey. Our Nevada air will do wonders for you. Look at me!"

(To be Continued Tomorrow.)

DE VAUGHN GOES TO B., R. & P.

Popular B. & O. Man to Be City Ticket Agent of Other Road. Ready for Y. M. C. A.

CAR SHORTAGE NOW FEARED

J. P. DeVaughn.

Jerrold P. DeVaughn has been appointed city ticket agent of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railway in Pittsburgh under Division Passenger Agent Pascault. No successor has yet been named for Mr. DeVaughn as assistant city ticket agent of the Baltimore & Ohio in this city, but the position will probably be filled before this week closes. Mr. DeVaughn will take up his new work next Monday, and will have as his assistant Charles S. Callen, who is secretary of the Pittsburgh passenger committee, and has been identified with the Buffalo road for some time.

Mr. DeVaughn has had an interesting career, having been somewhat of a globe-trotter, adventurer and fighter in his few years of young manhood. He began work with the Baltimore & Ohio while he was a schoolboy at Washington, Pa., where his father, Marcellus DeVaughn, is agent. In 1898 he took regular service in the freight office at Washington and in 1900 was placed in the maintenance of way department of the Pittsburgh division. The next year he went to St. Louis, thence to New Orleans and thence to Durban, South Africa, on a British horse ship. Proceeding to Pietermaritzburg he enlisted in the Second Johannesburg Rifles and served 10 months. He returned home by way of England in 1902, having traveled 27,000 miles, only 33 of which were covered twice in his journey. He again took service with the Baltimore & Ohio at Washington, was transferred to the ticket office and about a year ago was promoted to assistant city ticket agent in Pittsburgh.

Says Lake Erie Men Like N. Y. C.

Officers of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie are not prone to view with approval the suggestion that some of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie employes do not like the increasing dominance of the New York Central lines management. They profess to know absolutely nothing of a feeling among the employes against the New York Central. From remarks overheard recently, however, it would appear that not all are of the same mind, although the men who were heard talking did not belittle or decry New York Central, except in its dominating the "Little Giant" with new ideas generally used on the other New York Central roads, and thus making the Lake Erie lose its identity. They feared that before long not a vestige, except in the monument of the road itself and the memory of older men, would remain of the "Little Giant." The Lake Erie, however, is working in perfect harmony with the New York Central ideas, and ideas for betterment of other lines have been taken from the "Little Giant's" school.

Cars Plentiful, but Shortage Feared.

Cars are still plentiful to care for the shipments of ore, coal and finished steel products in this district, but, because of the recent spurt in iron and steel and because of the middle district mines resuming operations, a shortage of equipment is feared. There has been a very noticeable increase in business on all of the railroads, and every road is endeavoring to keep its equipment in good shape and as close to its own lines as possible. Coal has taken on a slight spurt in this district, in addition to the opening of mines in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. It is mostly in coal and ore cars that a shortage is expected, although box cars are to be kept busy moving crops which farmers of the middle west have just begun harvesting.

Y. M. C. A. Progressing

Baltimore & Ohio employes in the shop, operating and maintenance departments of the Pittsburgh division are looking forward anxiously to the disposition of their appeal for a branch of the Central Y. M. C. A. of Pittsburgh at Glenwood. Upward of 800 men have signed card petitions, subscribing their membership and support. The last of these will be in the hands of division officers probably today, after which the subject will be presented to General Superintendent Finney, General Manager Fitzgerald and other officers. From recent action by Mr. Fitzgerald and others along this line, the men are feeling pretty happy over the outlook for good quarters for themselves at Glenwood. The association will start with at least 500 active members.

Paying No Attention to Erie Cut.

Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania officers are apparently paying no attention to the Erie railroad's rate cutting between Youngstown and Cleveland. Because the Baltimore & Ohio, as the Erie alleged, broke an agreement and made a rate of $1.25 for a Sunday excursion from Youngstown to Cleveland, the Erie on June 17 made a rate of 25 cents and handled about 6,000 persons. Last Sunday the same rate was in force and 100 coaches were on hand, but only about 4,000 persons were hauled. No notice has been taken by the Baltimore & Ohio or Pennsylvania.

Railroaders on the Go.

General Traffic Manageer Ives of the Wabash was here from St. Louis yesterday conferring with General Freight Agent Booth and looking over the new steel link that has just been opened. He is well impressed, and looks for a large increase in freight traffic on all roads.

Real Estate Agent McCubbin of the Baltimore & Ohio was here from Baltimore yesterday conferring with local officers and attending the meeting with Braddock borough officers last night.

District Passenger Agent Pentecost of the Rock Island-Frisco system and City Ticket Agent Preston of the Baltimore & Ohio returned yesterday from a business visit at Chicago.

Railroad Notes.

The annual meeting of the Baltimore & Ohio relief department will be held at Wheeling tomorrow.

Edwin W. Robinson, a Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh employe of Punxsutawney, has secured a patent on a rail bond.

The Huntindon & Broad Top Mountain railroad has changed the name of Beaver station to Hummel in honor of the late William A. Hummel, who was supervisor for many years and who lived at Beaver.

Baltimore & Ohio surgeons are holding their annual meeting at Philadelphia. Some of the local surgeons are attending.

Fire Works Rehearsal at Dream City.

The pyrotechnic display on the lagoon at Dream City tonight promises to surpass anything ever seen here in the line of fireworks. The exhibition is really a rehearsal of the Fourth of July display.

The Metropolitan Concert band, with Miss Lillian Pickert, cornet soloist, will entertain with a carefully selected program afternoon and evening.

SPORTS TO BE FEATURE OF THE CELEBRATION

High Class Entries for Contests. Director Clark Has Nearly $5,000.

The Greater Pittsburgh Fourth of July fund continues to grow at the rate of about $1,000 a day. There was a total of $4,870 in the fund last night. This is a little less than half the sum required to meet the expenses of the celebration but Director Clark is confident that patriotic Pittsburghers who have not yet contributed will respond.

An elaborate program of sports and fireworks is being prepared. The sports this year will be a special feature and will take place at the Schenley park oval on July 4 at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. The following events will be contested: One hundred yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run, one-mile run, running high jump, running broad jump, pole vault, 120-yard hurdle and 220-yard hurdle. Several entries are already in and others of high class will follow. All those desiring to enter are requested to send their entries at once to Charles S. Miller, general manager of the fund, 440 Seventh avenue. As there was some delay in getting out entry blanks entries by letter will be accepted.

The following contributions to the fund yesterday were: Previously reported, $3,325; Max Klein & Sons, $10; Cash, $25; W. J. Gilmore Drug Company, $25; Thomas Sweeney & Co., $25; H. J. Heinz Company, $25; Reymer Bros., $25; Rodgers Sand Company, $25; Harbison-Walker Company, $25; Iron City Produce Company, $20; National Tube Company, $50; H. P. Bope, $25; Welsbach Light Company, $100; Columbia National bank, $200; American Reduction Company, $50; R. & W. Jenkinson Company, $25; Frank Mannella, $5; M. O'Herron & Co., $100; Philip Flinn, $25; total, $4,870.

MAN WHO USES KNUCKLERS IS SENT TO WORKHOUSE

Magistrate Brady yesterday sentenced W. T. Ward to 90 days in the workhouse. It was testified that late Monday night Ward met Fred Euwer in Grant street, near Second avenue, and struck the latter in the face. When arrested by Policeman David Lennis, Ward was wearing brass knucklers. He was arrested on a similar charge last week. He was photographed yesterday afternoon and his picture put in the rogues' gallery.

Special Days at Luna Park.

Tomorrow Luna park will be the picnic rendezvous of the school children of the Thirteenth ward, and under the direction of the school commissioners it is expected to be the greatest outing of the kind ever given. The festivities will begin with a parade of 3,000 children. Entering Luna the procession will be reviewed by the commissioners and will then break for the day. Friday is the day selected for the regular Luna park parade. Unless unforeseen circumstances arise to interfere or delay, that day will witness a grand procession of all of the resort's movable features. There will be carriages and floats and other details calculated to make a brave showing.

Courts an Automobile Death.

Automobiles had their speed reduced last night in the East End by a man who appeared bent on committing suicide. He jumped in front of several machines at Fifth and Penn avenues with the apparent intention of allowing them to run over him. The action of the man caused many of the women riding in the automobiles to almost faint. At the hearing before Magistrate Walker he gave his name as Max Flemm, 19 years old. He was committed to jail for five days so that his mental condition can be looked into.

THE "COURT" IS FINALLY LANDED

Jury Finds Italian Guilty of One Crime and He Pleads to Two Others.

WEIL EXAMINTS A. S. GUFFEYF

After Detective Homer Crooks had chased Stephen Beccario, alias the "Count," through the principal cities of the east and brought him to Pittsburgh, Beccario yesterday entered a plea of no defense to two charges of fraudulently making a written instrument and of larceny by bailee. He was also found guilty on a charge of false pretense preferred by Alois Fisher, who claims he passed a worthless check for $90. He will be sentenced later. He was arrested at Atlantic City about one month ago.

The case of Dr. S. G. Ginner, who with D. E. Bowen is charged with a serious offense by the father of 13-year-old Elizabeth Bauman, was given to the jury yesterday afternoon, but a verdict has not as yet been returned. Dr. Ginner made complete denial of the allegations of the prosecution. He said he had treated the girl merely for her general health. Bowen, the other defendant in the case, seems to have become implicated because of his desire to assist the girl in her trouble. The girl told a story which placed him in a very favorable light.

Judge Macfarlane sent Joseph McCutcheon to the penitentiary for one year for entering a freight car.

Gorley Stokes was acquitted of the larceny of a dozen chickens. He was accused by Philip Weigel, and the entire question of ownership devolved upon the abbreviated condition of the comb of one of the chickens in dispute.

The Jutte case, on trial before Judge Shafer, still shows no signs of coming to an end. A. S. Coffey, attorney in fact for the late W. C. Jutte, who has been on the witness stand since last Friday testifying in relation to Jutte's books and papers, was still being cross-examined by Attorney Weil for the plaintiffs, when court adjourned.

With the exception of the Hartje case, the divorce trial list was finished yesterday, with one or two exceptions the cases were uninteresting. The case of Mrs. Fannie Hecht against Adolph Hecht, a wealthy Braddock liquor dealer who was charged with desertion, was unopposed, although the couple have had numerous troubles which reached in court in other forms. She testified he put her out of the house and refused to live with her.

An execution was filed by the Knoxville Land Improvement Company against J. F. McNeely for $1,022.

CAN'T AGREE ON MEASURE.

House and Senate Conferees Differ on Pay for Meat Inspection and Date Labels.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The meat inspection amendment to the agricultural bill probably will be returned to the senate and house in disagreement. The conferees twice had it under discussion today and the indications are that the differences in regard to the payment for inspection by the packers or by the government, and whether the date of inspection must be placed on cans of meat, are irreconcilable.

Another effort to get together will be made at 10 o'clock tomorrow. A complete agreement was reached on all other matters in the bill.

Capt. Wynne Is Found Guilty.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The court-martial which recently tried Capt. H. E. Wynne, U. S. marine corps, on charges of insubordination, has found him guilty and recommended his dismissal from the service. The President has approved the recommendation of the navy department that Capt. Wynne be permitted to resign.

THEATER FOR SHUBERTS IS GOING AHEAD FAST

Contract for $300,000 Building on Hotel Boyer Site to Be Awarded August 1.

The contract for the theater to be erected for the Shuberts on the Hotel Boyer site at Seventh street and Duquesne way will probably be awarded about August 1. Detailed plans for the building, which were prepared by Architect W. Albert Swasey of New York, have been approved and are now being figured. They call for an investment of at least $300,000 and a theater which in its attractiveness and general convenience will rival any playhouse in Pennsylvania.

The building will be erected by F. F. Nicola and Wilbur Shenk, who own the site, a lot facing 139 feet in Seventh street and 110 feet in Duquesne way. The Seventh street frontage, except the handsome entrance to the theater proper, will be utilized for business purposes and a half dozen large storerooms will be provided. Just when the work of tearing down the historic old Hotel Boyer building begins has not been announced, but its days are numbered, inasmuch as the bids now being received from large contractors indicate an early letting of the contract. The Shuberts secured a long lease on the property early in the spring.

Eagles Scream at Calhoun.

A contest for a $1,000 banner will be a feature of the reunion at Calhoun park today by the Fraternal Order of Eagles, under the auspices of the Monessen aerie. There will be five bands and 15,000 people are expected. Prizes will be offered for athletic contests.

A Clothing Sale That Will Set the Town Astir

A Hit! A Hit! A Most Palpable Hit!

Men expect big things of "The Big Store," and we never disappoint them. Every once in a while by reason of our immense outlet, we are able to lay before our customers fine and stylish

Clothing for Less Than the Cost of the Cloth

The present instance is a striking example. The only feature to be regretted is that there are only 3,200 Suits—all the maker had. Read the particulars.

A CLOTHING manufacturer who ranks 'way up in the tailoring world—whose clothes are known and bought and appreciated from ocean to ocean—found himself with a big surplus stock of Men's Outing and Three-Piece Suits.

He had need to turn his energies and workrooms to Fall preparation—and had to rid himself without delay of the balance of his summer stock.

We had little thought of buying so much just now, but his offer was so excessively low that we simply could not let it go unheeded—so the surplus stock is here.

We cannot give the name of this manufacturing tailor—that is part of the agreement. Besides, it wouldn't be fair to certain Pittsburgh clothiers who paid and must ask full prices for the same goods. Of course, the maker took his label out—but we put ours in its place, to prove our faith in the goods.

There Are 3,200 of These Suits in All $6.25

Some worth $12, More of them worth $14, Most of them worth $15 and $16, but we will offer choice from all at the one and only price of . . . . .

Come in early in the morning, ahead of the big crowd and thus make sure of getting exactly the style, color, material and size you want. The assortment embraces the following:

Men's Outing Suits

These are of absolutely all-wool fabrics, including Gray Worsteds, Over-plaids, Checks and Stripes. The suits are Single and Double-Breasted, quarter-lined with silk and alpaca. Tailored with such excellent workmanship that the shoulders will retain their broad, natural effect. The trousers all have cuff bottoms and belt loops. None of these suits were made to sell for less than $12, and other values are up to $16. Thoroughly well-made and dependable garments.

Men's Three-Piece Suits

These single and double-breasted suits are in light and dark colors, including blue and black cheviots, grays in mixtures, stripes and checks. The fabrics are all-wool. These garments are well trimmed, lined with Serge or Alpaca. We want you to examine the workmanship in these garments—we're sure you'll recognize it as the highest-class tailoring. The maker sells these same suits through clothiers for $12, $14, $15 and $16, and they are worth it.
